"Hang Me With Him."
Ultra Simple Divorce.
Canada, Our Friend.

THE WORLD'S kind-hearted people were interested six years ago in the Reverend Dr. Uriah Meyers' horse, Clover, nearly fifty-three years old. Twenty-five dollars a month pension was received to keep the old horse in comfort—plenty for the purpose.

Now the reverend doctor, himself, ninety years old and his wife are trying to live on $25 a month, $12.50 each, not enough. They are sometimes hungry.

Will philanthropy do as much for the Reverend Dr. Meyers, ninety years old, as it did for his horse, aged fifty-three, and give him enough to live?

A young woman, well educated, married to a scoundrel, followed him and his fortunes, and will soon be hanged with him in Canada. She was with him when he murdered a taxicab driver.

An effort is made to save her from the gallows, and the girl amazes her friends, saying she does not want to be saved "If he hangs, I want to hang with him." That should amaze nobody. It might be amazing if a man said it.

A woman is willing to be burned with her children, or hanged with her husband, when she likes him. It is part of the female disposition.

Germany proposes a law to make "a simple wish" sufficient ground for divorce.

It would not be necessary to prove guilt. Wife or husband can say, "A continuation of my married life has become impossible." That will end it.

The couple must live apart one year before getting the divorce. When no guilt is proved, there will be no alimony. The richer of the two will be expected to help the poorer.

That makes our "companionate" marriage quite conservative.

Secretary of State Kellogg has been in Canada, well received, and heard Canadian statesmen say there is no danger of our

JOHN D., JR., TO BE OIL WITNESS

Washington, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was subpoenaed today by the Senate public lands committee to appear as a witness, Saturday, in the new Teapot Dome inquiry.

The United States marshal at New York City was asked to serve the subpoena on the so-called "richest man in the world." However, this will not be necessary as Mr. Rockefeller telegraphed accepting service to appear Saturday.

Clerks in the New York branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada also have been called.

While Rockefeller was being summoned, Sheldon Clark, vice president of the Sinclair Refining Company, was exonerated of the charge of contempt of court growing out of jury surveillance in the Fall-Sinclair mistrial. Justice Siddons sustained a motion of Clark's counsel to dismiss the rule again him.

Daniel T. Wright defense counsel, asked the court to keep "an open mind on the question whether shadowing of the jury constitutes contempt."

"The court always maintains an open mind," Justice Siddons replied testily.

The contempt charges against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and associates, arose from the mistrial of the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case and the court has refused to dismiss them.

Rockefeller will be called to tell what he knows about the Continental Trading Co.'s mysterious $50,000,000 oil deal and its even more mysterious $3,080,000 Liberty Bond "slush fund."

Rockefeller is not expected to divulge any new information, but the committee was convinced that he ought to be put on the witness stand to prove that the largest stockholders in the oil company in-

Four men were injured today when gasoline being used to clean hats exploded in the shoe repair shop at No. 38 Summer street.

A large front plate glass window blew out and Ralph Lagrudino of Orient street, East Boston, one of the employes, leaped so quickly through the gaping hole that passers-by thought he had been shot out by the force of the blast.

The injured were Pasquale Cutillo, the owner, of Saratoga street, East Boston, severe burns on left leg; Joseph Catagoni of Leverett street, lacerations on face and hands; Frank Marino of Harris street, lacerated

MOVES TO EXHUME DEAD GIRL

A surprise motion to exhume the body of Grace E. Mills was made in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today by George L. Ellsworth, counsel for Joseph Foster Buckley, whose trial for the alleged murder of the 19-year-old Waltham girl will open Monday.

Permission for another post-mortem examination of the body was sought because of the court's recent refusal to compel District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell to furnish defense counsel with a report of the medical examiner's findings in the case.

Judge Hugo A. Dubuque, who heard today's motion, refused to entertain it at this time, and suggested that Ellsworth confer again with the district attorney in an effort to reach an understanding without the necessity of court action.

Ellsworth set forth in his appli-

Return to private ownership is the best solution of the Boston Elevated problem, members of the Legislative Committees on Metropolitan and Street Railway Affairs, holding a joint hearing at the State House, were advised today by Professor Philip Cabot of the Harvard School of Business Administration.

SOCIETY YOUTH HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH AFTER AUTOMOBILE IS SEIZED

Francis Edgar Stanley Warren, 22, son of Mrs. Prescott Warren, Back Bay society woman, and grandson of the inventor of the Stanley steam automobile, surrendered himself this afternoon and was arraigned in Municipal Court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the killing of Miss Margaret Duches, Beacon street domestic.

The case was continued until March 1, and Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster set the bonds at $5000 after being informed by Attorney Louis J. Greene of Cambridge, counsel for young Warren, that District Attorney William J. Foley had agreed to that amount.

2 GIRLS MISSING; SEEK WOMAN 'WITH A LIMP'

A tall, well-dressed woman who walks with a limp, was being sought by the Cambridge police today in connection with the mysterious disappearance of two school girls of that city.

The girls, Clara Latham of Gilmore street and Alice Snell of Park street, left their homes last Saturday night to visit the married sister of the Snell girl in Somerville. They did not arrive there, and since that time their families have heard nothing from them.

Today Mrs. Sarah Latham and Mrs. Alice Snell appealed to Chief McBride for help, expressing the fear that their daughters have been lured away by a strange woman who has been reported several times as having spoken to Cambridge school girls.

"That is sound American doctrine!"

Beaming with pleasure, General John J. Pershing today placed this forceful stamp of his approval on the Boston Evening American editorial on the President's appeal for an American press free from foreign influence.

The leader of America's mighty World War expeditionary force read this editorial, which appears today on the last page of this newspaper, at the Copley-Plaza Hotel prior to an address before the Women's Republican Club.

He fully concurred with the views of President Coolidge, whose appeal for an unfettered, patriotic press is in effect an indorsement of the position of the Hearst papers, as the effi-

Fire-Setting Device Placed in Brighton Houses By Mysterious Firebug

BRIGHTON FIREBUGS BURN 3 HOUSES; SUSPECT SOUGHT

Brighton fires and set the torch to the unoccupied 2½-story dwellings at Nos. 146 and 150 Lake street and No. 1 Lake Shore drive.

No single person, police declare, could have arranged the amazingly cunning devices through which destruction of the property was sought. Only quick discovery of the flames and prompt work of firemen responding to the alarms limited the total damage to $4,000.

The most elaborate preparations were made in each instance to assure complete destruction of the houses, all of which are owned by Michael Tedesco of No. 95 Maverick square, East Boston.

On the second floor of No. 148 Lake street firemen found an aperture in a closet filled with small cans of gasoline, oil-soaked rags and a burning candle. Over the hole had been set a board.

In the cellar of the same house an empty nail keg had been filled with oil-soaked rags and oakum, and a candle placed nearby. The oakum extended from the keg and was wound around rafters above. A "wigwam" of lathes had been erected close to the keg.

Strips of cloth had been placed at the cellar windows so that flames would not be reflected outside the house and could gain headway before an alarm.

On a bench in the cellar of No. 1 Lake Shore drive was an open can of gasoline surrounded by paper with a burning candle set close to the fuel. All these contraptions were in addition to those which actually ignited the houses.

Police believe that an automobile was used to transport the inflammable material to the houses and that the car was parked nearby while preparations were being made by two or more pyromaniacs to fire the structures.

It is very possible that the incendiary responsible for seven as yet unsolved fires in South Boston churches is the owner of a car, police say.

The proximity of the new fires to the Cenacle Convent is also held as evidence that the same dual obsession for fires and religion suspected in the South Boston "firebug" was responsible for the new incendiarisms.

The story told by Fred Gibbs of No. 156 Lake street, that he saw a man running from the scene as flames began to glow in his house is substantiated by Patrolman Benn of the Brighton division, who noticed the same man running, as he believed, for a car.

Special Officers Hamlet and Willard of the Brighton division questioned neighbors in the vicinity today in an attempt to gain a description of the person who displayed so much haste just as the flames burst forth.

CHURCHES ARE GUARDED.

A close guard is still kept on all South Boston religious edifices and will be maintained until the pyromaniacs are captured. South Boston and State police, aided by headquarters inspectors, are seeking two young men seen near the Gate of Heaven Church at about the time the fire there was discovered.

Another seen near SS. Peter and Paul Church on Tuesday is sought on the suspicion that he planned to set a fire there and was frightened away by the parochial school blaze.

Frank Pemlane, the seven-year-old lad who police claim confessed to starting the South Baptist Church fire, was at his home in E street when the blame broke out, his mother claims. The boy's older sister, Annie, charges the child's confession is a "lie" obtained by the police who threatened him with a strap.

He will appear in juvenile court Saturday on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal, being already on probation for a similar offense.

$500 Reward WILL BE PAID by the Boston Evening American for information, furnished exclusively to the City Editor of this paper, which causes the arrest and conviction of the pyromaniacs responsible for the unsolved incendiary fires in South Boston churches.

Information may be given in person to the City Editor of the Boston Evening American at No. 5 Winthrop Square, or it may be telephoned to the "American City Desk" at Liberty 4000. All information will be treated confidentially and will be given to proper prosecuting authorities.

Stewart Defies Rockefeller; Offers to Resign His Post

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today revealed that Col. Stewart, central figure in the Teapot Dome inquiry, who refused to divulge information, told Mr. Rockefeller "nothing can" change his position." Mr. Rockefeller said Stewart said the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana could have his resignation whenever desired.

Rockefeller's statement was contained in a telegram to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, in which he said in part:

"I have seen Colonel Stewart and told him that in my judgment public interest demands the fullest possible light be thrown upon the matter under investigation.

"I told him I regretted he had not answered the questions. Colonel Stewart confirmed the position he had taken before the committee and said nothing could change his decision. He stated he did not wish to embarrass the stockholders of his company and they could have his resignation whenever they desired it. This is a question which the stockholders will naturally consider as the matter develops.

"Colonel Stewart refused positively to discuss the case except as stated. I have wired the sergeant-at-arms that I accept service of the subpoena.

"An invitation would have been equally effective."

CHANGE URGED IN STATE ARSON LAWS

A change in the arson laws to make possible the indicting of a person for maliciously burning certain building, regardless of ownership or occupancy, was urged at a legislative hearing today at the State House by Maurice M. Osborne, committee on metropolitan affairs, Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"Under section 1 of the old law," he said, "a man cannot be indicted charged with burning the dwelling of himself, nor can a tenant who has sole possession of a building be indicted, charged with the burning of the dwelling of the landlord. Under the 'modern' law the ownership or occupancy of building burned is of no consequence."

YOUTH HELD IN AUTO DEATH

Sureties were furnished by George Fred Williams, former candidate for Democratic governor, and the youth was permitted to return to his home at No. 90 Commonwealth avenue.

The woman was struck down at Commonwealth avenue and Dartmouth street two hours after Mrs. Frank Morison, 80, widely known society woman living at No. 40 Commonwealth avenue, had been killed at the same spot in the same way.

The warrant for young Warren was issued after the police of the Jay Street Station found the alleged death car in a West End garage.

The police say identification was made positively by a piece of apple wedged into one of the headlights. Miss Duchez was carrying an apple in her hand when struck.

Orders which had been left to have repairs made on the machine were countermanded by the police, who confiscated the car.

Miss Duchez lived on St. Botolph street. The car which is believed to have struck her is owned, according to the police, by Miss Emily Warren, society debutante.

Scores of pedestrians saw Miss Duchez struck, fall, and then saw the car speed on up Commonwealth avenue without slackening speed.

However, Miss Duchez had been carrying an apple in her hand, and fragments of it were found near her body. Also witnesses said that one of the headlights on the hit-an-run driver's car had been smashed when the machine struck the woman.

Immediately Sergeant Frank McNabb and Patrolman Sheehy of the Back Bay division sent out word to have garage proprietors report any car brought in with a damaged headlight. Hardly had the word been issued than a Cambridge street garage reported the arrival of a car with a broken headlight. According to the police Sergeant McNabb found a piece of apple in the headlight of this car, which turned out to be registered in the name of Miss Emily Warren of No. 128 Chestnut street.

The information the police have been able to glean concerning the driver of the car is still vague, though it is expected that today's investigation will clear this point.

Mrs. Morison was killed by the car driven by Vincent J. Velardi of No. 29 Walnut street, Waverley. Velardi stopped his machine as quickly as possible after striking the woman and she was taken to the City Hospital, However, she was pronounced dead on arrival there.

HICKMAN'S FATE TO JURY NOW

Los Angeles, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Only three hours of argument, the judge's instructions and the jury's verdict stood today between William Edward Hickman and his fate.

Barring unforseen delays, attorneys for prosecution and defense will have painted their last word pictures of the kidnaper and murderer of Marian Parker and the case will be in the hands of the jury before night. The jury must decide whether Hickman is a callous criminal or a madman, he having pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity."

By his plea Hickman has legally admitted commission of kidnaping and murder.

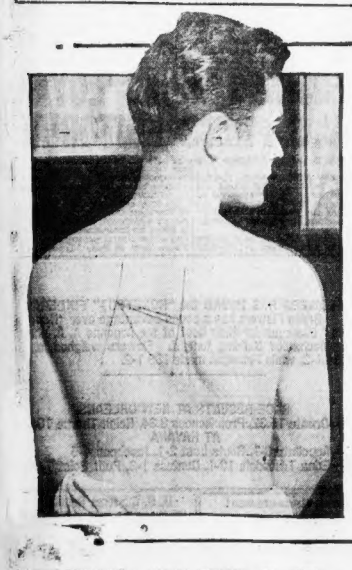

If found sane, Judge J. J. Trabucco is required to pronounce sentence not less than two and not more than five days from the time the verdict is returned. The choice between a sentence of life imprisonment or the death penalty is discretionary with the judge where the jury makes no recommendations, and in this case jurors—sitting only on the sanity or insanity of the youth—legally can make none.

After Jerome Walsh, young chief of defense counsel in his argument to the jury labeled the kidnaping and slaying of the 12-year-old girl as "the most dastardly thing that a human ever set out to do," court attaches remarked that his course left little chance for a plea of mercy if the youth were found sane.

"For Hickman, the murderer, I hold no brief. It is for Hickman, the madman, that I come to speak to you," the boyish Kansas City attorney said.

COLLEGE GIRLS AMONG 'WORST OFFENDERS'

As an effective means to the removal of the army of "thumb-jerkers" and "hitch-hikers" from the highways of the State, speakers today before the legislative committee on highways and motor vehicles urged a law to inflict fines ranging from $10 to $25.

Day Baker, representing the Massachusetts Automobile Dealers and Garage Association, told the committee that the practice has become an "intolerable nuisance" aside from its contributions to the list of fatalities.

Girls, college students, messenger boys and schoolboys were said to be the principal offenders.

"I don't object to having a nice looking girl ride beside me," said Baker, in relating a personal experience on Commonwealth avenue, "but I don't care to assume the risks of an accident."

He told of another man who had given a girl a lift on the avenue, who later was accused of having tried to make a date with her.

If there were teeth in the law so that a few examples could be made, he asserted, the practice would stop.

Lewis E. MacBrayne, representing the Massachusetts Safety Council, member of the Governor's safety committee and the Mayor's traffic committee, supported the bill.

A member of the committee suggested that college students could be instructed at the universities not to ask for rides.

"Well," replied MacBrayne, "a great university asked its students not to trade with bootleggers. It didn't have any effect."

Other members thought that laxity on the part of the police was responsible for the growth of the practice.

BOSTON THOUSANDS 'SKID' TO WORK IN FOG AND RAIN

SHIPPING TIED UP BY LOW VISIBILITY

While the harbor and the outer sea were blanketed today by heavy fog for the second day in succession, all Greater Boston came skidding to work, whether by foot or by motor, to labor under lights and face an indefinite period of gloom and drizzle. The rain later turned to snow.

So thick was the fog today over the water that a small fleet of freight steamships refused to make the attempt to get into the harbor to dock, preferring to remain in open water outside.

The fleet included the steamships Newby-Hall from Calcutta and Colombo, Rexmore from Glasgow and Liverpool, Mexicano from Antwerp, Larenberg from Amsterdam and Blairadam from Algeria.

The New York-to-Boston boat George Washington refused to put out from Gotham last night, but left instead this morning. Instead of docking at 8 a. m. today, she will dock at 11 p. m.

Visibility at Highland and Deer Island lights, as well as other observation points was practically nothing at 8 a. m. on account of the pall of fog.

There was little prospect held out today by sharps for a brighter brand of weather within the next thirty-six hours, but as the temperature rose the ice film covering streets and sidewalks melted away and left merely wet highways.

While the ice film was on the macadam and asphalt, however, automobile drivers experienced some ticklish driving, with many a skid and frantic recovery.

The storm centered today in New York State and the fog belt extends from Maine to the Virginia Capes, where it probably will remain well into tomorrow.

GOODWIN STIRS UP GOSSIP AT STATE HOUSE

The State House was surprised today as a result of the appearance before the legislative committee on civil service of Registrar Frank A. Goodwin in the capacity of an officer of the Commonwealth Improvement Association, the organization of State employes.

Goodwin appeared at the hearing of the association's bill to place the State constabulary under civil service. Speculation was rife as to whether Governor Fuller would construe the registrar's act as open defiance of the gubernatorial order that Goodwin attend strictly to the affairs of his own office.

The recent controversy between the Governor and motor vehicle chief, which brought up the question whether the latter could be discharged from office, apparently was not considered by the registrar in relation to his act today.

Goodwin compared the work of State troopers to the duties which are performed by his own inspectors who are civil service employes. He urged the committee to examine the records of the State patrol to ascertain the percentage of turnover.

In his own office, he declared, there has been little need of any changes among the civil service employes, and expressed the opinion that better enforcement of the law would result from placing the troopers under civil service supervision.

Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of the former governor, was present at the hearing and recorded in favor of the bill.

HUNT WRITER OF NOTES SENT TO RENEE ADOREE

Reno, Nev., Feb. 9 (A.P.)—Acting on a complaint from Renee Adoree, film actress, police started a search to trace the sender of several threatening letters received by Miss Adoree at her home in Los Angeles. The letters were postmarked Reno, Nev.

The officers sought information from Julius Dennert, a farm hand, who obtained a divorce here from a woman whose name he gave as Renee Adoree. In Los Angeles the actress declared she never had heard of Dennert and newspapermen there located Renee Dennert, who said she was the woman divorced by Dennert. Twenty-four hours after obtaining the divorce Dennert married Lena Wahlstrom of Downey, Cal., and officers believe the couple left for the bride's home.

Artist Crosses Sea in Beard Quest — So Millionaire's Memorial to 'Pilgrim of 1602' — Can Be True to Life

WITH SPADE BEARD

Whether Bartholomew Gosnold, first Englishman to land in New England, had a spade or a stiletto beard is a moot question.

Gosnold arrived in 1602 and Col. E. H. R. Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green, the financial genius, is to erect a memorial to the venturesome mariner on Green's estate at South Dartmouth, but it is necessary to picture Gosnold's whiskers absolutely true to life.

Green has sent Harry Neyland, artist and sculptor of New Bedford, to England to solve the whiskers question and he is searching records in quest of Gosnold data—but without much success, thus far. THIRD QUAKE IN MILO, ME.

Milo, Me., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Windows rattled and water in wells was roiled today when this town had its third experience with earth tremors within two weeks.

Two disturbances were noted shortly before 11 o'clock, accompanied by a sound which seemed like that made by snow sliding from a roof. No damage was reported.

Three tremors of sufficient force to shake buildings were felt here and in the neighboring town of Brownville yesterday, and several were noticed a week or more ago.

TEACHER IS KILLED WHEN DOUBLE-RUNNER UPSETS

Colebrook, N. H., Feb. 9 (A.P.)—Injuries which she received when the double-runner sled on which she was coasting with four pupils from her class overturned caused the death today of Miss Elizabeth Mawhinney, a teacher in the Clarksville school. One of the pupils, Daphne Hurlbert, nine, suffered a broken leg.

Thinks More Babies Would Mean Fewer Divorce Cases

London, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—A severe onslaught was made upon the "modern mother" by Dr. J. A. Nairne, former famous headmaster of the Merchant Tailors' School.

"Instead of being looked upon as the supreme blessing of marriage, parenthood is looked upon all too often as a nuisance, a burden and a tie," said Professor Nairne today.

"I am certain more babies would mean fewer divorces and greater marital happiness.

"Domestic arrangements today mostly leave children out of consideration. Riches, luxury, amusement have become the prime necessaries of life. The family boys are vanishing from among us."

$15,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY GLOUCESTER BLAZE

Gloucester, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Fire today destroyed a wooden building on the waterfront here owned by the Producers Fish Company and occupied by that concern as a storage house and also by the Kiser Fish Company. The loss was estimated at $15,000.

2 GIRLS MISSING SEEK WOMAN

Both Clara Latham, who is 16, a fancy dancer of no mean ability and who has appeared at many private recitals, and Alice Snell, 14, but large for her age, have been spoken to by the strange woman, according to their mothers.

This woman is described as having worn a dark red coat, black hat, and black dress, is tall, about thirty-five years old, with dark hair and eyes and walks with a limp. The police have been told that she has offered tempting allurements to school girls to accompany her on a visit to a nearby city.

Mrs. Latham and Mrs. Snell told Chief McBride they were confident their daughters would not remain away voluntarily, that they had no reason to leave home, and if permitted to do so would surely communicate with their families.

Chief McBride called Captain Patrick Hurley of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation into conference, and later plainclothes men were put to work on the case.

hazardous for the State to indulge in, he said. After a return to private ownership, he explained, the State would continue to exercise control over the fares charged.

"I am not a stockholder, but if I were, I should prefer continuation of public control, for I believe the company would have a hard time making 6 per cent., if privately managed," he said.

NO RAISE IN FARES.

"The fear that under private management fares might be raised to 15 cents or 20 cents is wholly groundless. Experience has proved that when an attempt is made to raise fares above the level now charged here, traffic falls off so fast that gross and net income are actually less.

"I do not think any solution of the problem of the Boston Elevated is possible, which will please all parties, but I believe that the best practicable solution would be the return to private ownership.

"Losses are certain to occur whether the enterprise is owned by private capital or by the Commonwealth. But if the property is owned by the Commonwealth, these losses fall on the taxpayers, many of whom do not use the system, and none of whom have any source to which they can look for aid.

INJUSTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

"Such an arrangement is robbing Peter to pay Paul and the injustice to the taxpayer is almost as great under the method of public control proposed by the Harriman Bill as it would be under government ownership.

"If the Legislature thinks it wise to reduce the cost of operating the monopoly by the use of the credit of the Commonwealth, this can easily be done without squandering the taxpayers' money at six per cent. The Commonwealth can build such new subways as are needed and equip them at less than 3½ per cent., leasing to the railway on terms which will repay principal and interest within a reasonable time."

If a director of the company, Cabot said he would not feel justified in voting for rapid transit extensions that would lose money. He caused smiles when he said he had no wish to be a company director of the Boston Elevated.

James F. Jackson, former chairman of the public trustees of the Elevated, after explaining that since leaving that position he has become a stockholder, stated that continuation of the present method of control seemed to him better for both stockholders and public. Jackson gave his views on invitation from the committees.

POSTAL RATE CUT FOR NEWSPAPERS IS URGED

Washington, Feb. 9.—Reduction in postal rates on newspapers, magazines and other second-class mail matter in the 1921 rates, was recommended by Postmaster General New in a letter to the House postoffice committee.

Publishers will save $2,850,000 in 1929, should the 1921 rates be restored, Joseph Stewart, executive assistant to New, told the committee.

New endorsed the Griest bill, which cuts the rate.

WATSON TO RUN FOR PRESIDENT

Washington, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana has decided to become an active candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

The decision was made known to the announcement of the appointment of M. Burt Thurman of Indianapolis as Watson's campaign manager.

While Mr. Thurman is to begin active work immediately, formal announcement of the Senator's candidacy will not be made until next week, when he plans to issue a statement outlining his views on the chief issues of the day.

Watson is the third Republican Senator to throw his hat into the presidential ring. The others are Curtis of Kansas and Willis of Ohio.

Coolidge Makes His Frontier Soldier Friend His Aide

Washington, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—Colonel Dennis Latrobe, the frontier cavalryman who didn't want a desk job in Washington, today was appointed chief military aide at the White House.

President Coolidge and Latrobe struck up a friendship in the Black Hills last Summer while the colonel was commanding the cavalry at Fort Meade, S. D.

Latrobe's interesting yarns pleased the executive so much that he invited the colonel back for dinner after he had eaten through luncheon with him. Then, a short time ago, Mr. Coolidge inspired an order that brought Latrobe to duty in Washington and they have had many pleasant hours together here.

Latrobe succeeds Colonel Blanton Winship, who was appointed legal adviser to Henry L. Stimson, Governor-General of the Philippines.

Sparks from a machine or from some other source probably ignited the gasoline, police said. Glass from the splintered window was scattered over the sidewalk and pedestrians secured it safety.

While stoking the boilers in the basement of the store of James McDuffee & Stratton on Franklin street today, James Spellman of Jamaica Plain, a fireman was badly burned on the arms when flames from a back-fire shot out of the doors. Spellman was taken to the Ida market Relief Station where his burns were treated and he was sent home.

BILL TO CHECK DIVORCE FRAUD

Charging that many divorces are being obtained through fraudulent testimony, Senator Alfred M. Bessette of New Bedford today urged the legislative committee on legal affairs to favor his bill to make mandatory a notification by the courts to the district attorneys when a divorce is granted for cause constituting a misdemeanor or a felony committed within the state.

The present law says the court "may" give such notice. Senator Bessette contends this bill will cure the evil of collusion in obtaining divorces.

AUDIENCE RESPLENDENT ON NINTH NIGHT OF OPERA, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Jewels, Worn in Less Elaborate Settings Than of Yore, Emphasize Simplicity of Costumes

WHEN, LAST EVENING, IN A HUSHED AND CROWDED OPERA HOUSE, Conductor Weber waved his baton for Tannhauser's liquid first notes the occasion might well have been the Grand Opera premiere, so resplendent was the audience, so widely representative, and so spontaneously enthusiastic in its reception to the Wagnerian masterpiece. All the elements of a brilliant "first night" were there. The luxurious wraps. The smart gowns. Exotic perfumes. The modish accessories chosen to accent the ensemble's high note. The slippers fashioned so delicately to enhance a slender ankle with suave line or glittering ornament.

ONE CAN BUT MARVEL AT BOSTON'S CONTINUOUS, UNABATED ABSORPTION in its Grand Opera season. One also marvels at the bewildering kaleidoscope Madame and Mademoiselle, with gowns and jewels and feminine folderols, make of the promenade—each evening entirely in contrast to the evenings gone before. To those who recall the operatic pageant when Boston was blessed with its own opera company, time's passing appears to have changed the picture not at all. It's just as glittering and just as gorgeous now as then, except perhaps in one item—few and far between are the handsome dowagers who dazzle the eyes with dog collars, diadems, tiaras, corsage ornaments and the like.

JEWELS TODAY AT THE OPERA AREN'T THE INTRICATELY ELABORATE ornaments they used to be, like unto the crown jewels of a royal sovereign. Miss Modern and her cropped-haired mater have had the family jewels translated into modernistic settings. Gone are the diadems, the stomachers, the tiaras and the dog collars. Nowadays diamonds glimmer on threads of platinum well nigh invisible. Single strands of precious stones clasp the throat in dainty necklets. Earrings dangle almost to the shoulders. And the diamond clusters that were wont to glitter from elaborate coiffeurs have moved downward on the feminine figure and now adorn shoulder, bodice, or even belt.

HOWEVER CERTAIN HANDSOME DOWAGERS WHO STILL CLING TO THE very formal mode are, by very contrast, the most impressively ornamental figures of the horseshoe. Mrs. Horace Binney, for instance, and Mrs. James Jackson, Er Nothing in all the company excelled for beauty and opulence Mrs. Binney's costume and jewels. Her gown was ruby velvet, cut en train. Diamonds glittered in her ears, and about her throat was clasped a handsome dog collar of pearls and diamonds interspersed with rubies. A chain of diamonds swung on her corsage, and in her hair were diamond pins.

MRS. JACKSON, IN THE SAME BOX WHERE SHE HAS SCINTILLATED SO many opera evenings this season, wore a gown of silver lace, with a scarf of unspotted ermine. And she, too, reverted to the era of elaborateness for precious jewels, and wore dog collar, pins, bracelets and strands of pearls. Since Miss Modern scorns such display for herself, she accomplishes the grand effect by smartness of line, lavish beauty of material, and accessories in keeping. Miss Betty Bartlett, for one, wore a rose freck of swishing fringes on satin, and for ornaments a strand of pearls. Simplicity and smartness, without ostentation.

MISS RACHEL JACKSON

Society girl will attend Miss Sally Pratt when that important Gotham deb weds James Jackson, Jr., in a small but distinguished ceremonial late this month.

AND ALSO OF THE YOUNG GIRL SET, EFFECtively but simply arrayed, there was Miss Evelyn Windeler, in black velvet; Miss Helen Moseley, in ecru lace and chiffon, with a strand of diamonds at her throat; Miss Eleanor Frothingham, in black velvet; Miss Elizabeth Livermore, in white crepe intricately designed in gold braid; Miss Jean Sears, in silver lame; Miss Eleanor Gibson, in rose brocade; Miss Helen Scott, in nattier blue and silver; Miss Mary Hopkinson, in a period frock of rose taffeta; Miss Grace Cushing, in black velvet with antique lace bertha; Miss Evelyn Cummings, in rose crepe; Miss Jessie Bancroft, in crystals on white crepe, and Miss Frederica Warner, in blue silk with a twisted gold necklet about her throat.

THERE IS IN BOSTON ONE MATRON, AT least, who wears an elaborate diamond bandeau with cropped hair, and achieves stunning results. Very likely she is the exception that proves the rule. She is Mrs. Harris Livermore. Last evening her costume of rose and black crepe was set off by the bandeau aforementioned, and by several handsome diamond ornaments. Mrs. A. Winsor Weld wore old blue and silver. Mrs. Henry Sturgis Grew wore black crepe and lace studded with brilliants. Mrs. William H. Robey's frock was a French expression of matronly smartness in black and pale pink crepe. Mrs. Albert Amey's gown was handsome, done in black velvet with crystal bands.

THE SPRIGHTLY CHATELAINE of Box No. 34, Mrs. William Gordon Means, wore a sapphire blue velvet with uneveh hem and period lines. Several diamond ornaments were scattered over the gown. Her shoes were blue velvet with silver done in scrolls. The N. Penrose Hallowell family group, in their usual places in the parterre, was one of the most interesting in the entire assemblage. It contained Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, Sr., in the rose gray moire she wears so well, and also the pretty eldest daughter, Mrs. John Crocker, formerly Miss Mary Hallowell. Since marriage took Mrs. Crocker to Fitchburg, her very Smart Set here sees her all too infrequently.

MRS. H. WENDELL ENDICOTT carried a diamond studded purse with her green velvet frock. Mrs. Morgan Butler's period gown of rose-orchid taffeta was designed in silver; Mrs. George Dabney wore chartreuse green crepe. Miss Suzanne Dabney's gown was Ming green satin. Little Mrs. George Burgess was in Nile crepe, a pretty bride. Mrs. Edwin Ohl's black velvet frock had a diamond pin caught at one shoulder. Mrs. Ralph Menard's black gown took its accent from gold ornaments. Mrs. Harry Hill Richardson was in rose and silver. Mrs. Joseph Leland's costume combined green in velvet and crepe. Mrs. Charles K. Cummings wore old blue velvet. Mrs. H. Daland Chandler wore black and rose crepe, with pearls.

HAVING SHAKEN OFF BOSton's mists and climate vagaries for a Southward flitting, Miss Elizabeth Sprague and Mrs. Phineas Shaw Sprague will be wandering where skies are blue and breezes balmy for the next several weeks. Miss Sprague's engagement to Daniel Simonds, scion of a prominent Fitchburg family, was made known only a few days ago. Since Mr. Simonds is Harvard 1928, just passing through important senior days, chances are that wedding bells will not peal before late June.

BY THAT TIME THE BRIDEgroom-elect will have successfully weathered "finals" and acquired the coveted sheepskin. Club memberships in the Tennis and Racquet, Delphic, Institute of 1770 and the Eastern Yacht define the young man's social and collegiate status as quite lofty. While, of course, Miss Sprague moves with the Younger Set leaders, those girls of the Vincent Club and the Junior League who dwell socially in the holy of holies within the Vincent Club and the Junior League. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague, of Commonwealth avenue and Proof Neck, Me., and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Shaw Sprague, was Miss Lucy Carnegie and daughter of the Andrew Carnegies.

Filene's MEN'S STORE

"Like 'em? I should say so!"

And a man coming in with a friend, to whom he had recommended Filene's as a good place to buy clothes, said, "See this suit? It's a $40 blue suit I bought December 4, 1925, more than two years ago. Like 'em? I should say so—bought another last month!"

Many wives have been first to see the possibilities of the $40 blues!

Women . . . budgeteers of the family income, shrewd in buying . . . are apt to be first to appreciate values as well as a man's good appearance.

And many women who've come in with their husbands have influenced them to buy $40 blues because they can see that the extra trousers practically double the wear, that the suits fit extremely well and that a blue suit is most becoming to a man under almost any circumstances.

We're indebted to many wives, sisters, mothers and sweethearts for influencing men to wear the blues!

And incidentally, the men have been extremely well-satisfied, too.

BRITISH CHURCH HEADS AGREE ON PRAYER BOOK

London, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—The three governing bodies of the Church of England—the house of bishops, clergy and laity—today took up consideration of the new revised prayer book upon second reading with every prospect that it would be approved by all three.

Its approval was voted on first reading by the house of bishops and clergy on Tuesday and by the house of laity yesterday.

It is likely that a vote on second reading will be taken tomorrow or Saturday after which a new bill will be proposed for Parliament seeking official recognition or the amended book of prayer.

Leaders of the faction seeking parliamentary approval of the book have not been swerved by threats of disestablishment of the church as the result of friction over changes in the prayer book.

They see no possibility of separation of the church and State over the prayerbook, although it might arise from further discussions of a union of the Church of England and the Catholic Church of Rome.

BUTLER SURE KANSAS CITY CAN ACCOMMODATE G. O. P.

Washington, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Prediction that the controversy over adequate accommodations for the Republican national convention at Kansas City would be solved without difficulty was made by Chairman William M. Butler today after a session with members of the Republican national committee, who are perfecting plans for the meeting. It was generally expected that the arrangements committee would not select a temporary chairman and keynoter for the convention at this time, although this phase of the arrangements was up for discussion. In this connection Charles Evan Hughes was still the most favored for the job.

He has paid $79.93 for hat checking, and $1,200 for luncheons. His meeting time aggregates about 2,000 business hours.

"Why did you do it?" Pitt was asked.

"Why not?" he answered good naturedly.

Monkey Glands Give New Life, Say 2 Patients

Vienna, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—The by gland operations originated by gland operations originated by Dr. Voronoff were presented for examination at a meeting of the Vienna Medical Society. Their identity was hidden by face masks.

Dr. Emmanuel Schleyer, who performed the operations, said the baboon from which the glands had been taken was sent to him by Voronoff himself. The ape and the patients were operated upon simultaneously with local anesthetics and narcosis respectively.

The ape's glands were cut in thin slices and four were sewed upon the patient's glands. The glands of one baboon sufficed to rejuvenate three human beings.

The patients testified their desire for work had been greatly stimulated and that general mental and physical elasticity resulted. Both left the hospital after a week.

CHAPLIN TAX CASE SETTLED

Washington, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—The famous Charlie Chaplin income tax case, said to involve nearly $1,000,000, has been finally settled, it was learned at the Treasury today. The Bureau of Internal Revenue declined to reveal the terms of the compromise agreement. The case has been in litigation a year, following levies made by the government on the property of Chaplin, both in Los Angeles and New York.

These levies were filed during the time Chaplin was sued for divorce.

SOFT COAL STRIKE IN APRIL IS THREATENED

Chicago, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Another suspension of bituminous coal mining in the central competitive district by April 1 was the gloomy outlook of operators and miners today, unless renewed efforts to settle wage differences have more success than than just concluded.

The final meeting of the joint commission of miners and operators resulted in a deadlock. Operators insisted upon a wage reduction that would enable them to compete with non-union mines of Kentucky and West Virginia. The miners refused to budge from the present contract with a scale of $7.50 a day, or $1.05 a ton on a weight basis.

FRENCH FLIERS TO WING WAY ACROSS U. S.

Washington, Feb 9 (A.P.).—Lieutenants Lebrix and Costes, French transatlantic aviators, plan a transcontinental flight to San Francisco after they reach New York.

Lieutenant Lebrix made this announcement today in discussing his plans. He added that stops probably would be made enroute to San Francisco at Detroit, Chicago, Omaha and Salt Lake City.

The fliers expect to leave here Saturday morning for New York. After their return to France, possibly by way of the Pacific by steamer, Lebrix said plans might be laid for an east to west flight across the North Atlantic.

Lebrix and Costes had scarcely breakfasted today when they were whisked away by French embassy officials to face the round of entertainment.

"I have already cabled my mother our delight to arrive here," Lebrix declared with true Gallic enthusiasm.

"We are particularly pleased to reach America because we spent all last Summer hoping to fly here directly across the North Atlantic.

"We do not want to go back to Paris by plane, because Lindbergh has already done that. His flight was so 'chic' it would be useless repetition to follow him. After we get back to France perhaps we shall plan the east-to-west North Atlantic flight again. Who knows?

"But now," he continued, impulsively turning back to their immediate plans, "we want to see America. We shall fly as far as San Francisco after New York, probably stopping at the biggest cities.

"After that we hope to go back to France by ship across the Pacific. At any rate, we shall not fly back, either across the Atlantic or the Pacific."

This is not Lieutenant Lebrix's first visit to America, as he was here as a midshipman on the French training ship Jeanne D'Arc in 1920, and visited Annapolis, Washington and New Orleans.

"But I know nothing of American flying yet," he said, "and I have seen none of your commercial aviation development."

Lebrix denied a report that he is engaged to an American girl.

"American girls are charming," he said, "but 'en principe' aviators do not marry."

MORE WATER OR SHORTAGE HERE IN 1931

Springfield, Feb. 9.—A water famine faces Boston and the metropolitan district in 1931 unless the protest of Connecticut to the huge water development in Western Massachusetts is set aside, Attorney-General Arthur K. Reading warned today before Colonel S. A. Chaney of the War Department.

He asked that a permit be granted for the diversion of the flood waters of the Ware River to the Wachusett reservoir.

He denied the contention of Connecticut that the partial diversion authorized by the Legislature would reduce the navigable depths of the Connecticut River.

"Low Spring tides and adverse winds are undoubtedly the governing conditions affecting navigation depths at the times of reduced upland flow and will continue to be so," he said. "Even a greater quantity than is proposed to be diverted would not affect these conditions.

"It is estimated that in spite of the use that will be made during the next few years of additional emergency supplies the district is faced with the certainty that in the Spring of 1931 the Wachusett reservoir will be depleted to the danger point."

British Mayor Calls Walker 'Good Scout'; Returns Visit

New York, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—"I hope Jimmie Walker isn't waiting all night in his office for me!"

P. V. Bowyer, former Lord Mayor of Southampton, England, thus exclaimed as he paced the deck of the Berengaria before the fog-bound liner finally was brought to shore today.

Mr. Bowyer is in New York to return the call made by Mayor Walker on his trip abroad last year.

"And I'll be jolly glad to see him," confided the portly Englishman as he stepped down the gangplang to American soil. "He's one —what d'ye call it—one prince of a good scout."

SACCO BACKERS ASK ALL FACTS BE PRINTED

Request that the whole, and not just a part, of the Sacco-Vanzetti case record be published, was made today in a letter to Attorney-General Arthur K. Reading, sent by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee.

The letter was received only a day after former Assistant District Attorney Dudley P. Hanney of Norfolk County, who was prosecuting officer in the latter part of the case, charged before a legislative committee that Governor Fuller's survey of the case was unnecessary and was brought about through propaganda and large expenditure of money.

In the letter today the defense committee said:

"Did you mean what you said in your recommendation to the Legislature that the entire record of the Sacco-Vanzetti case, including all the evidence presented, be published? If so, may we assume that you are going forward with the work? Governor Fuller did not reply to your recommendation We hope this does not mean that he and you do not agree.

"We heartily endorse your insistence in this matter, and, reminding you that we asked for 'all the evidence' daily till the killing, we offer you whatever assistance we may give in accumulating all the pertinent documents.

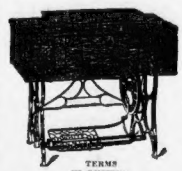

"We note the Boston Globe quoted you the day following your recommendation as qualifying your demand for 'all the evidence presented' by saying that you meant only so much of the evidence before Governor Fuller, President Lowell, et al as they see fit to publish. That qualification of course, vitiates the value of your original recommendation and we trust that you will return to the all-embracing nature of your recommendation when you assemble the material for the printer."

SUGGESTS U. S. SCRAP "GIANT BATTLESHIPS"

Cologne, Feb. 9 (A. P.).—The Gazette in granting that Secretary Kellogg's plan for scrapping submarines is admirable in itself, contends that it would simply result in making strong powers mightier and small powers weaker.

The paper suggests that it would be better if the United States gave proof of its good will "by scrapping her giant battleships and deciding to build no more."

VOTES FEDERAL RESERVE PROBE

Washington, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Senate Banking Committee voted today to conduct extensive hearings on the proposal to cut down the amount of loans on stocks and bonds allowed by member banks of the Federal Reserve system.

Senator Lafollette, Republican, Wisconsin, author of a resolution calling upon the reserve board to restrict these loans, asked the committee to hold hearings to work out "a sound legislative remedy." He contended the use of funds and credit of the Federal Reserve in this manner was to support stock speculation "in violation of the intent and certainly the purpose of the Federal Reserve Act."

No remedy was put forward by the Wisconsin Senator, who said he realized the problem was "complex."

Chairman Norbeck announced that members of the reserve board would be called when the hearings start next week.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, urged his bill to prohibit speculative loans by member banks, but the committee voted to confine its hearings to the Lafolletto resolution.

TAX REDUCTION VIEWS IN THE TALKING MOVIES

Washington, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Views of Democratic members of the Senate finance committee favoring immediate and "full" tax reduction and of the Republicans for cautious and conservative action on the pending revenue measure have been presented to the public in the talking movies by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Democrat, and Senator Edge of New Jersey, Republican.

Senator Harrison complained of the administration's delaying action on the tax measure until after March 15, when an idea of this year's revenue can be obtained.

Senator Edge warned that "unsafe tax reduction, while temporarily acceptable to the public, would be harmful and unfortunate."

ONIONS HAVE ODOR; WANT HIGHER DUTY

Washington, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Growers of a dozen States went before the tariff commission today with a plea for a 5 cent per cent. increase in the import duty on onions.

Flooding of the Eastern markets by Spanish and Egyptian producers, regardless of the present tariff of 1 cent per pound on imported onions, was charged by Senator Gooding, Republican, Idaho, and Representatives Garner, Democrat, Texas; Summers, Republican, Washington; Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts, and Taber, Republican, New York. This, they said, presented the necessity for an increase under the flexible provisions of the tariff act.

MARINES GUARD RICH COFFEE CENTER

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Managua, Nic., Feb. 9.—Matagalpa, center of rich coffee plantations some of which are owned by Americans, British and Germans, is excited over new evidences that the Sandino outlaws are in that vicinity. In response to an appeal more marine reinforcements are being rushed overland in hired automobiles to support the garrison there.

Other marines are moving from the North, endeavoring to get into contact with the outlaws.

When American Minister Eberhard was informed that the outlaws had visited the Potter plantation, owned by a British subject, near Matagalpa, and made away with all the mules on the plantation, he invited British Charge Patterson to call at the legation and in the presence of General Feland, told him of the steps the marines are taking to furnish protection to all foreigners around Matagalpa. His assurances were presumably satisfactory.

U. S. OPPOSES PROPOSAL.

Charge Patterson is reporting the details of the situation to London.

General Chamorro in the meantime is making the most of Sandino's southward dash, and is offering to abandon all constitutional objections if the United States will agree to eliminate from the coming election the three northern provinces of Neuva Segovia, Kinotega and Matagalpa through which Sandino is operating. These are strongly liberal.

He has been notified that the United States is not willing to even consider such a proposal because it is obviously unconstitutional and would conflict with the Tipatapa agreement.

The election will not be held until November and there is no necessity for a registration before October. There is ample time meanwhile to eliminate Sandino and provide protection for all the northern provinces.

The repeated efforts of Chamorro to overturn the majority Senate election law have been unsuccessful. Several alleged Chamorristas called at the legation to give assurance they are not in sympathy with Chamorro's effort to block thorough American supervision of the election.

WILL MEET SUNDAY.

A meeting of a council of the notable of the Conservative party has been called by Chamorro for Sunday in an endeavor to weaken the hold of President Diaz on the Senate. They expect to make much of Sandino's drive toward Matagalpa as a reason for postponing the election.

President Diaz has renewed his assurances to Washington that he will promptly call an extra session if the Congress adjourns Feb. 21 without passing a transitory provision election law. He says he is confident that he can pass the law through the House after the return of Cuardo Pasos, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who is now at the Havana conference. Pasos, a prominent Conservative opposing Chamorro, declares the election law is constitutional.

It is alleged he came here secretly from Siberia to take revenge upon the Soviet official whom he accused of causing his expulsion and killed the official's son.

RUSH TO HONOR LINDBERGH IN HAVANA

Havana, Feb. 9.—A great international conference between the republics of North, Central and South America may be going on here today, but Havana and, indeed the whole island of Cuba, had eyes only for one man—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

The flush of Havana's magnificent welcome to the flying colonel has not worn off an iota, and today everyone from the Cuban citizens to the officialse of their own and sister governments rushed to do honor to the "Caballero Del Aire" and to gather in cheering crowds wherever it was reported Colonel Lindbergh might be seen.

The Pan-American delegates were enthusiastic in greetings.

At noon today Colonel Lindbergh was to be honored at a luncheon given by the officers of the Cuban army at Camp Coluobia. Later he was to go to a ball at the yacht club, at which most of the delegates to the Pan-American Conference will be present.

The general city-wide reception to Colonel Lindbergh as he dropped from the sky yesterday afternoon after completing his flight from Haiti in perfect time was something which will be remembered by every Cuban.

TRIBUTE TO MOTHER.

As the Spirit of St. Louis was sighted from the historic Morro Castle, the last stronghold of old Spain, sirens screamed, whistles shrieked and the horns of automobiles and the bells of street cars filled the air.

Lindy had arrived.

After the reception at the field, a motor procession was formed to escort Colonel Lindbergh to the presidential palace, where President Machado greeted him officially. In his greeting, President Machado included one for Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, the aviator's mother. It read:

"To your good mother, who awaits you with open arms, say in our name that her son discharges a great mission of love and peace, and that we, as also the other countries you have visited, owe her sincere acknowledgment for having brought to the world a person who has done so much for brotherhood among all peoples.

"Tell her that our hearts feel for her and that in my person Cuba sends her its love and admiration."

CLASH WITH SOLDIERS.

Newspaper photographers attempting to record the arrival of the flier clashed with soldiers stationed at the field to preserve order. Three Cubans an dseveral American photographers were understood to have been injured in the melee and many camreas broken.

Cuban photographers charged that press badges issued by Brigadier General Herrera were ignored by officers. A formal accusation was made by the Reporters' Association of Havana against a number of army officers.

As Lindbergh left the balcony of the palace he received a motherly blessing in English from Madame Pouvert Terry, wife of a prominent Cuban, who made her way to his side.

So great was the desire of Cubans to see the Lone Eagle arrive that they cast aside an ancient custom. The tradition that an unescorted woman must not seat herself beside a man in any public conveyance was defied by dark-eyed Cuban senoritas and women of all ages who traveled the eight miles to the flying field.

Exact plans for Lindbergh's flight to St. Louis Monday have not yet been completed. "I plan, however, to go along the west coast of Florida," Lindbergh explained. "I expect to leave with a comparatively light load. In fact the Spirit of St. Louis has in it now enough gasoline to take it to St. Louis."

The first airmail service between the Islands of the Antilles was inaugurated with Lindbergh's arrival. Two sacks of mail from Santo Domingo and one from Port-Au-Prince were delivered at Havana by the plane.

Cantor and Ziegfeld Dispute to Go to Arbitration

New York, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.).—Arbitration will be resorted to today to settle the differences between Eddie Cantor and Florenz Ziegfeld. Eddie, pleading pleurisy, quit the "Follies," which was fored to close, depriving Flo of an additional $35,000.

Eddie said he would have to go to California to recuperate. The mention of the west coast State brought the idea of movies into Flo's head, and suspicions followed.

Now both sides will be told to the Actors Equity, which will decide the rights of the question.

BRITISH ADMIRALTY ORDERS 4 SUBMARINES

London, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Vickers Armstrong Company announced today that it had received an order from the British Admiralty for the construction of four submarines.

The Admiralty in confirming the announcement said the four submersibles are part of the already announced 1927 construction program of six submarines. Contracts for the other two have been given other companies.

HUB MAN HELD; AUTO WRECKS COTTAGE

Leominster, Feb. 9.—An automobile driven by Clyde R. Race of West Medford, crashed into a truck driven by Frank Roddy just outside here early today, then caromed off the heavier car, toppled over a twelve-foot embankment and crashed down upon the cottage owned by Joseph Pike on North Main street.

Though the falling automobile tore away the whole verandah from the Pike cottage, Race was unhurt, but he made a tactical mistake when he asked Roddy, driver of the truck into which he had crashed, to drive him into Fitchburg.

Roddy did drive him—just as far as the first policeman who was Patrolman Albion Richards. Richards took Race in charge and booked him for drunkenness and operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor.

'KRESGE MONEY NOT TAINTED,' SAYS SUNDAY

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 9.—"Money purifies itself like water. I think the Anti-Saloon League is perfectly right in keeping Kresge's $500,000. I would keep it myself, too, if I thought I could do good with it. Anyway, Kresge is a good friend of mine and there are two sides to every story," said Billy Sunday, renowned evangelist.

He had been asked what he thought the Anti-Saloon League should do about the recent gift of Sebastian S. Kresge, dime-store magnate, in the light of the millionaire's divorce scandal.

NO TAINTED MONEY.

"All this howl about tainted money gives me a pain," exclaimed the evangelist. "I feel the same way about it that a noted church prelate did several years ago.

"This prelate was raising funds for a new cathedral. Some gamblers, saloon keepers and other reprobates contributed about $10,000. Some men high in the church protested to the prelate, 'Do you think it right to take such money?'

"'Certainly,' he replied. 'Money is money. After a while it purifies itself like water.'

NOT A HYPOCRITE.

"I like Kresge very much. He is a good friend of mine. I don't know whether these charges are true or not. There are always two sides to these things.

"I do know one thing, though, Kresge is no hypocrite. He may have been mixed up with some girl but I know he was no boozer."

TWO AUDIENCES THRILLED BY OPERA STARS

By MOSES SMITH.

Two operatic masterpieces which between them, represent a road part of all the great music there is in the current repertoire of the Chicago Opera Company, were presented at the Boston Opera House yesterday before crowded houses. Bizet's "Carmen" held the stage for the matinee, while Wagner's "Tannhauser" was the bill for the evening.

A certain great conductor is said really to like only three operas—"Boris Godunoff," "Tristan and "Carmen." The reasons for the inclusion of Bizet's work in this list are obvious, especially if the list was meant to be representative of different national schools. There is probably no other opera, at any rate French opera, about whose place as a masterpiece so many classes of people are in agreement.

The enthusiast of the modern French school will tell you that "Pelleas" stand alone. The Wagnerian will insist that beside "Tristan" all other operas are as mere dross. But each of these and lovers of Italian, Russian or any other operas will admit that "Carmen" is one of the outstanding productions for the lyric stage. No better proof is needed than that it has survived its tremendous popularity of half a century and is still going strong.

The performance was the best we can remember of this work from the Chicago Company. Mary Garden, in the title role, abandoned all her customary mannerisms and settled down into a beautifully conceived interpretation of the Gypsy. She colored her tones with the subtlest of nuances, made herself more than a plausible figure in the ensemble, and never resorted to prima donna whims. She earned the plaudits of the audience.

Elde Norena, charming of face and manner, was an exquisite Micaela. Such beautiful singing as she gave is not often heard, and the best praise we can think of is to say that it was even more lovely than Edith Mason's previous work in the same role. Mme. Norena's voice had such quality and freshness that she quite reconciled the listener to the stupidity of the librettists in tampering with Merimee's story and in including a character that does not belong in the play.

Vanni-Marcoux played Escamillo here for the first time, so far as we are aware. Although he had made an excellent study of the character, the role demands a smoother voice than his. Nevertheless his portrait was a relief from the usually absurd caricatures of the bull-fighter.

Fernand Ansseau sang very well as Jose. His acting was a noticeable improvement over his previous interpretations of this part here, but he has not yet learned to suggest with freedom the lover caught in the toils of Carmen. The minor parts were capably sung, the ensembles were well done, and the staging was excellent.

"Tannhauser" is not one of Wagner's masterpieces, but it can hold its own with its present operatic companions. And "Lohengrin" and "Tannhauser" are better than no Wagner at all. Unfortunately the Chicago company is not equipped to give a first-class performance of difficult German works. Such works demand a group of singers especially schooled in the German traditions.

Considering these circumstances the performance was a fairly good one, and the listener starved for German opera was grateful for this morsel.

There were several noteworthy impersonations. Cyrena van Gorden sang the Venus music with sumptuousness of tone that thrilled the ear. Leone Kruse, as Elizabeth, sang her second role in Boston better even than her Elsa of "Lohengrin." Luscious of tone, intelligent in action, beautiful to the eye, she measured up to the traditions.

HE'LL EXPLAIN HUMAN WHYS

You may or may not have given any thought as to why we act like human beings.

You may or may not have considered why one man is so attuned that he wriggles through windows at night with a gun and mask, while another man's life has been so shaped by him that he is in position of hunter of the first.

Why do we love a certain woman and pass another by; divide our last crust with one man and take a long punch at his brother human?

Beginning next Monday these things will be explained in the columns of the Boston Evening American by a scientist who has made a study of mankind all his life.

He is George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LL.D., anthropologist and author and a world traveler of renown. In connection with expeditions organized by the Field Museum of Chicago and other scientific bodies, he has journeyed in Egypt, India, Burma, Siam, Java, Australia, New Guinea, the Solomon Islands, China, Japan, Peru, Mexico, Africa and Alaska.

For years he held the post of professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, and before that he was the first student enrolled in the Department of Archeology and Anthropology at Harvard.

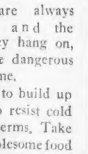

Remember, the masterful and widely-acclaimed work of Dr. Dorsey, "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," begins Monday in the Boston Evening American.

STATE SOLONS MOURN SNOW AND SULLIVAN

Closely following the death of Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Dorchester, former pugilist bartender and Governor's councillor, at the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital, came the death today of Representative Walter Herbert Snow of Somerville, ice cream manufacturer and caterer and former member of the Somerville aldermanic board.

The death of Representative Snow at the Somerville Hospital brought the total of representatives' deaths in this session of the Legislature to five. The other three who died were George B. Ager of Wellesley Andrew Doyle of New Bedford and Felix Galineau of Southbridge.

Representative Sullivan had been taken from his home in Homes Avenue, Dorchester, to the hospital eight weeks ago, and he never had the chance of recovery from the first.

He served five terms in the House of Representatives from the Dorchester district and he was a member of the Governor's Council about 10 years ago.

Although Mr. Sullivan never aspired to other than State office, he took an active interest in city politis, and the administration of the public schools. Frequently he was heard on Beacon Hill as a Legislator and as a private citizen, advocating some piece of constructive and humanitarian legislation, and fighting the corporations, when he was not championing the cause of the working man, as a member of union labor.

Sullivan always prided himself on being father of a large family. He often said he believed in early marriages and lots of children. Married at 18, his oldest daughter married when she was 16 and "Louie" was one of the country's youngest grandfathers at the early age of 37.

Sullivan's entrance into the prize ring was an accident. In 1896 his child fell sick with a serious illness. Doctor's bills commenced to pile up and the head of the household looked for extra money. Sullivan was willing to go through the ropes for his kid and so made his jump into the fistic arena.

ARGENTINA AND U. S. IN TARIFF DEADLOCK

Havana, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—In an effort to break a deadlock between the United States and Argentina, the sub-committee on the Pan-American Union was summoned to meet today.

This deadlock arose over Argentina's insistence that the union be granted authority to investigate the application of tariffs in Inter-American trade. After three hours of discussion the United States had not altered its opposition to this nor Argentina its demand.

The apparent determination of Charles Evans Hughes, chairman of the United States delegation, and Honorio Pueyrredon, head of the Argentine delegation, to maintain their positions led delegates to speculate as to the possibility of breaking the impasse.

FREE FLOW OF COMMERCE.

Ambassador Pueyrredon a fortnight ago demanded that the union be empowered to study means for lowering excessive tariff barriers to inter-American commerce. He was understood to have maintained at a meeting of the sub-committee that it was necessary for Pan-Americanism to assume a concrete economic form tending to remove all obstacles to the free flow of commerce.

He was represented as having emphasized the difference between duties imposed by American nations and European nations, contending that the American States, bound by the brotherhood of Pan-Americanism, should not harm the economic interests of sister republics for selfish gain.

"When I stretch forth the hand of fellowship," Ambassador Pueyrredon was quoted as having said, "I stretch forth an open hand, not a clenched fist."

WOULD AMEND PREAMBLE.

Such a declaration as Argentina demanded, Mr. Hughes was understood to have said, would be in contradiction of the declaration of the full sovereignty of American States which is contained in the preamble of the Pan-American union convention. It was this preamble that the Argentine ambassador sought to amend.

The committee on public international law again had before it for consideration the report of Dr. Victor Maurtua, Peru, on the fundamental basis of internation.l law, proposing a declaration by all American governments on the definitions and rules of application of international law to give precision and permanency to certain definitions and general rules which up to the present have been simply matters of international doctrine and practice.

The draft said the field of international law covered not only the rights and duties of States, but also the rights and duties of the nationals of the different countries among themselves and with other States.

Los Angeles, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—A jury was selected in Federal Court today to try Adolfo De La Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, and four co-defendants on charges of conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws. The other defendants are Louis Gayou, Alfonso G. Mortin, Francisco Ferrer, and Enrique Beraceda.

"YELLOW MASK"

Make This Simple Test. If Present, Use Dental Science's New-Found Corrective.

Look in your mirror. Focus your eye right on your teeth. Is the enamel a gleaming white, or is it obscured by a dismal yellowish tinge?

Of course, you don't want teeth of a yellowish hue—because that color is unbecoming, positively repellent. Nor can your teeth be free of it until you change your present dentifrice. Here are simple, convincing facts.

That "yellow mask" is caused by a "liquid cement" in your saliva. It glues to your teeth—then hardens. Tobacco, food and coffee stain this hardening mask an unlovely yellow. Ordinary dentifrices fail to remove it—because they lack the one special substance necessary to efface it.

That substance is "Tri-Calcium Phosphate." This is a material smooth and fine as face powder that foremost dentists use to clean teeth. But dental science has just succeeded in embodying this marvelous cleaning substance in a pleasant, tasty tooth paste. Therefore, only now has it become possible for you to remove that unsightly "yellow mask" and gain teeth beauty that fairly dazzles in its whiteness.

The name of this remarkable dentifrice is ORPHOS TOOTH PASTE. So efficient is it that we guarantee it to whiten. And without the slightest harm to the enamel. Buy a tube today with this provision: If ORPHOS, after 20 days' usage, leaves you with the slightest trace of disappointment, return the unused part of the tube to your druggist and receive your money back.

SCHOOLGIRL'S ROMANCE ENDS IN 2 DEATHS

Bryn Mawr, Pa., Feb. 9 (A.P.)—An apparent murder and suicide of the youthful principals in a love affair was discovered early today in the finding of the bodies of a young man and girl huddled together in a coupe automobile in Haverford township, near here.

The girl, Bella Alexander, 17, was not dead when police came upon the coupe, but died several hours later in the Bryn Mawr Hospital without gaining consciousness. Death was due to a bullet wound of the head and another of the abdomen.

Her 21-year-old sweetheart, Louis Shapiro, is believed to have died instantly from a bullet which pierced his temple.

WEDDING POSTPONED.

The pair had been sweethearts for three years, police learned, and were to have been married in two weeks. For some unknown reason, the girl postponed the wedding recently and her parents advanced the theory that Shapiro shot the girl and then himself when she refused to accede to his requests for an immediate ceremony.

Shapiro rented the coupe last night in Philadelphia, the police learned, and went to the Graphic Sketch Club to await Miss Alexander, who had gone there. A note found on Shapiro's clothing signed "B. A." showed the meeting in front of the club was pre-arranged. From there they are believed to have proceeded to the lonely spot where the car was found.

Several policemen, patrolling the deserted road on which the coupe was parked, became suspicious this morning and decided to investigate. They found the dome light of the car burning and the two forms slumped together on the seat.

FIND REVOLVER IN CAR.

The girl was rushed to the hospital and an immediate operation performed in a vain attempt to save her life. She died without being able to make a statement.

Returning to the parked car, the police found a .25 calibre revolver with four unexploded cartridges still in the chamber, on the floor of the auto.

Relatives of the girl, when informed of her death, were enraged and told police they had repeatedly opposed her receiving the attentions of young Shapiro. She was the youngest of four children and was a member of the senior class at the William Penn High School for Girls.

Shapiro was an electrician. They both lived in South Philadelphia.

ABOLITION OF SPEED LAW URGED ON LEGISLATURE

Wiping from the statute books the "obsolete" speed laws which call for 26 miles an hour with a maximum of 15 miles in congested ways was urged at a legislative hearing today at the State House by representatives of the Boston Automobile Club.

James P. Cavanaugh, counsel for the club, contended no one recognizes the present speed laws, "It would be much more reasonable to have no specific regulation other than that vehicles should be operated with reasonable regard for safety," he argued.

Improper Language Good Reason for Taking Out Phone

Improper languages used over the telephone to operators was today held by the Public Utilities Commission to be sufficient grounds for removal of the instrument from the home of the subscriber.

The commission approved the action of the telephone company in terminating service given to John W. Steele of Broadway, Chelsea, figuling at the conclusion of a hearing that "the misuse of the telephone service was such as to warrant the company in discontinuing it."

WOULD EXHUME GIRL'S BODY

cution that he wished the body exhumed so Dr. Francis P. Mahoney, medical expert for the defense, might properly prepare himself to testify at the trial next week.

Buckley, 23-year-old Weston youth, is charged with shooting his sweetheart as they sat in a parked automobile in Waltham early in the morning of November 16 last. Buckley himself was shot and seriously wounded, and it has been his claim that the girl fired the first bullet into her breast as the result of a suicide pact.

She then begged him to shoot again and end her pain, he said, so he placed the pistol against her body and pulled the trigger. Then, according to his story, he turned the gun on himself.

Before the shooting the pair had ridden for hours about Sudbury, Weston and Wayland. Miss Mills, a petite, golden haired girl of pronounced beauty, was said to have been a semi-invalid because of heart disease.

ROBBER TRIES TO BITE GEM FROM GIRL'S HAND

New York, Feb. 9 (I.N.S.)—Miss Cecelia Tressman, twenty-one, was blackjacked by a negro in the hallway of her home in Brooklyn early today. Miss Tressman told police that the negro bent her on the head with a blunt instrument, and tried to bite a diamond ring from a finger of her left hand. Her screams awakened Nat Ascher, a neighbor, who pursued the negro with a baseball bat, but was unable to catch him. Miss Tressman was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

BANDIT SHEDS GARB, FLEES SALEM JAIL

Salem, Feb. 9.—Joseph Frye, 25, a trusty serving 18 months at Salem Jail for holdup and robbery, made his escape today.

Prison officials said Frye changed his clothes before leaving the yard and believe he had accomplices awaiting him outside. An alarm was immediately sent out and Lynn police, who arrested Frye originally, were ordered to take him at gunpoint.

Frye was sentenced last November in Lynn for holdup and robbery of two women proprietors of a lunch room of $197. When arrested it was found he was under indictment for hitting a man on the head with a billiard cue.

According to police, Frye was employed at Salem Jail to take in from the yard bamboo used by other prisoners in making chairs. He made one trip this morning, but failed to return from the second. A search revealed his prison uniform in the yard.

MAN DIES UNDER STREET CAR IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Feb. 9 (A.P.)—Louis A. Cosgrove, 50, of No. 91 Clarence street, Auburn, R. I., was instantly killed here today when, running to catch a moving street car, he slipped and fell under the wheels.

BLUNDER COSTS CITY MILLION, SAYS NICHOLS

Boston will be forced to expend $1,000,000 because of the second error of its kind by the Metropolitan District Commission, Mayor Nichols asserted today in criticizing the legislative committee on State administration for turning down his bill providing for a Boston representative on state boards in dealings affecting the Hub.

Just as the Metropolitan District Commission's "blunder" in preparing the Boston Airport cost the city $450,000 in corrective money, the commission's identically similar "blunder" in filling in for the Old Colony boulevard will cost the city practically an even million, the Mayor declared.

Had Boston had a representative on the commission, even if only for consulting and advisory purposes, neither of these mistakes would have been made, he said.

Because the State has filled in across Dorchester Bay from Fox Point to Freeport street and has provided for a channel only 300 feet wide for the ebb and flow tide to Savin Hill Beach, that bathing spot has been ruined, the Mayor asserted, through pollution of the waters.

It had been understood, according to the chief executive, that the Old Colony boulevard would be carried across the bay on piers, leaving the progress of the tide untrammeled.

He said it was exactly the same type of blunder that was made in filling in for the airport, no provision having been made there for disposal of sewerage and the city being forced to install a pumping station and a system of conduits to take care of it.

"Had Boston a representative on this commission, even if only for consulting purposes," the mayor asserted, "the commission could not have made the errors they did."

Asked by a reporter if he, Mayor Nichols, believed he was being treated as harshly as ex-Mayor Curley on Republican Beacon Hill, even though the mayor himself is a Republican, he replied:

"Good Lord, I have been treated worse than Curley."

URGES GOVERNOR'S PAY BE RAISED TO $25,000

Declaring the salary of the Governor should be sufficient to enable him to at least break even on his campaign expenses, Representative George P. Anderson of Boston, before a legislative committee, urged raising the pay of that official from $10,000 to $25,000 a year. He also asked that the lieutenant-governor's salary be increased from $4,000 to $10,000.

Heavy Death Tax Laid on Haig's Gift Estate

London, Feb. 9 (A.P.)—The death duties on the estate of the late Earl Haig have produced an unusual situation which is causing comment in England

After the war the House of Commons voted Earl Haig a gift of £100,000 as a mark of the nation's gratitude, while a fund of £286,000 also was raised by public subscription for the purchase of the Bermesyde home in Scotland.

Unless Parliament takes some action, the exchequer will take back something like a quarter of the country's gift under the present death duty rates.

Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the Commons today that the law gave him no power to make an exception.

MANY PROTEST GIRL'S DEATH ON GALLOWS

Local protests against the prospective hanging of Mrs. Doris Palmer MacDonald, once schoolmate of Millicent Rogers Ramos, the former Countess Salm, continued to pour in today.

Condemned to die on Canadian gallows in March with her husband, George MacDonald, for the murder of a Montreal taxi driver, friends of the woman, who hails from Mount Vernon, N. Y., are speeding up their efforts to save her life.

PREPARE FOR PLEA.

Evidence which it is believed will show the former Broadway butterfly is mentally irresponsible, has been forwarded to the Canadian authorities, and Attorney Wolfgang E. Criberi will make a plea before the Canadian Minister of Justice, with Clarence Darrow, famous Chicago criminal lawyer, probably associated with him.

From all parts of the United States and Canada protests against the fate imposed on Mrs. MacDonald are being received by the committee organized in Mount Vernon, of which Dr. Walter W. Cervantes is treasurer. The girl's early life has been studied, with the result that the fact she was a classmate of Millicent Rogers in an exclusive New York finishing school, has been revealed.

ADOPTED WHEN A BABY.

Mrs. MacDonald, when a baby, was adopted by a Mrs. Palmer, now a wealthy resident of Oklahoma City, who surrounded her with luxury and sent her to the finishing school. Later Doris Palmer discovered Broadway, and her downward career began.

Following are comments of prominent residents of Greater Boston, who protest against the hanging of Mrs. MacDonald:

REPRESENTATIVE C. F. NELSON PRATT, Saugus: A glaring instance of the brutality of the death penalty is exemplified in the MacDonald case in Montreal, where a husband and his accomplice wife are to die on the gallows next month. How can society expect to prevent the taking of human life when it legalizes murder?

DR. E. G. MITCHELL, psychiatrist: I don't believe that society has the right to take life as a collective personality of the State. The protection of society is best safeguarded in the difficulty of getting by the parole board for pardons. Suspense is greater agony than death. Life imprisonment should be the State's greatest punishment.

CATHERINE WARE SMITH, Cambridge: I can't imagine any mother or student sanctioning the death penalty for any murderer. Let a murderer work out his punishment but let not the innocent suffer. Let society profit by his endeavors in the confines of a prison.

MRS. JESSICA HENDERSON, Wayland: It must be wrong for the State to crush out so viciously the life of an individual. The MacDonald girl must die for the sake of her husband. Where is society in this instance? It is unfair for the State to take upon itself the right to do what it commands its people not to do.

END TESTIMONY IN RUM TRIAL OF THREE

Both the government and the defense rested their cases in Federal court today following the rebuttal testimony produced by Asst. U. S. Attorney Hubert C. Thompson against John B. Magnus, wealthy Newton resident; Carl G. Halwartz, ex-Coast Guard executive officer, and Sidney F. Nichols, ex-Coast Guard boatswain.

The trio are on trial before Judge James A. Lowell and a jury on an indictment charging them with a rum-smuggling conspiracy in the Summer and Fall of 1926.

George A. Callahan of Lynn, former bookkeeper for Magnus, admitted he was known at various times over the past several years as George A. Carter and George A. Cartwright, but denied he had ever leased an apartment on Boylston street in the name of George A. English.

He declared he was in the liquor business before prohibition and admitted he was arrested by the Scituate police on July 4, 1926, in connection with a rum-landing episode.

He denied having, in the past, any interest in the rum-runner Dorothy and Mae, and also denied selling tickets on State street giving the purchasers an equity in her cargo.

He further denied that he had been indicted for liquor smuggling or that he had demanded $12,000 from Magnus in return for refusing to testify against him.

Walter J. McInnis, president of a Boston firm of naval architects, testified he designed a motor boat which he afterward learned was named the 174, and stated one of the men in the group who gave him the commission for it was known as J. P. Rogers.

Asked by Attorney Thompson if he saw Rogers in the courtroom, the witness pointed at Magnus and said he looked like Rogers, but Rogers was a much slimmer man.

At this point both sides rested and Kiernan, for Magnus, began his argument before the jury, to be followed later by counsel for Halwartz and Nichols.

PERSHING O. K. ON EDITORIAL

torial and its accompanying letter from Mr. Hearst point out.

The terse sentences outlining a great and glorious and fundamental American principle evidently found a responsive chord in General Pershing's own nature and experience—the experience of one who has sat in conference with Europeans and is familiar with their desires—for he slapped his hand emphatically on a table as he pronounced his concurrence in the views expressed.

"The President wants to stop this business of foreign governments influencing American governmental policies by subtle control of the American press," said the General.

These words accurately interpreted the President's meaning, he said, and he added that the heart of the President's message was contained in the words:

ADDRESSES G. O. P. WOMEN.

"Whenever any of the press of our country undertake to exert their influence in behalf of foreign interests, the candor of the situation would be greatly increased if their foreign connections were publicly disclosed."

General Pershing himself expressed the idea of President Coolidge, the idea of the Hearst newspapers and the idea of every patriotic, red-blooded American citizen when at the women's meeting to which he was forced to hurry, a few minutes later, he said:

"The perils that threaten our stability are not always visible, but are often insidious. The sophist finds an easy prey among the uninformed who are ofttimes ignorant of even the mechanism of government."

With inspiring phrases, he urged national preparedness and support for the system of national defense upon which, he said, the security of the United States depends.

"For our future security the system of defense provided just after the close of the World War should receive the unqualified support of the people," he declared.

He was in Boston primarily to assist in a drive for $6,800,000 for partial construction and endowment of the $30,000,000 National Cathedral at Washington. Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington, accompanied him, former U. S. Senator James Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania, a leading layman of the church, was also in the party.

"OUT OF POLITICS."

He took occasion to state that he was not in politics and did not care to discuss the reported "Pershing-for-President" movement, saying that his main interest for the present lies in memorials to our war dead in France and the building of the cathedral "to the glory of Him to whom we owe all that we are as a nation."

"As a strong believer in preparedness, it is my conviction that the real strength of the nation lies in the religious sentiments of its citizens," he said in the course of his address to the Republican women.

"Many cathedrals have been destroyed in wars; it is my desire to assist in building one. The capital is the strategic point at which to make our demonstration of the greatness of Christianity.

"It was believed that women would give fresh impetus to the general interest in local and national affairs. But results do not indicate fulfillment of that hope.

"Dishonesty in our political life is one of the grave dangers to our institutions. It is for the women to help quicken public conscience.

2,500,000,000 Ciggies Smoked in This State Annually

An estimate that Massachusetts' consumption of cigarettes reached a total of 2,500,000,000 annually was given to the legislative committee on taxation today by Dudley P. Ranney, representing a wholesale tobacco firm.

Attorney Ranney was opposing a bill, sponsored by former Senator Andrew Casassa of Revere, for a cigarette tax of ½ cent for each 20 cigarettes or fraction.

Casassa told the committee the measure was not designed to serve as a prohibition but as a satisfactory method of getting additional revenue from a source where it will not prove burdensome.

"This revenue would go a long way towards reducing the enormous fire loss contributed to by the article we propose to tax," he said.

GOODWIN FLAYS PAROLE SYSTEM

An attack on the parole system, and advocacy of a law preventing a second offender from getting probation, featured two appearances of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin at the State House today.

"I can see no reason for the provision which permits the parole board to release prisoners after two-thirds of the minimum sentence has been served," said the registrar in connection with the parole system. He charges that judges are compelled to give stiff sentences so as to make sure the prisoner will serve the number of years he believes the crime warrants.

Attorney A. A. Parker of the Massachusetts Civic League and Sanford Bates, commissioner of correction, opposed the change.

Referring to the probation law, Registrar Goodwin said that the probation system is a good thing so long as it is not abused.

"It doesn't seem right that persistent offenders should be placed on probation," he said.

Any interference with the discretion of the courts, such as the measure Goodwin advocated, was opposed by Herbert C. Parsons, deputy probation commissioner.

WOMAN CUT BY GLASS IN AUTO-SKIDDING CRASH

One woman was cut by flying glass and two other persons were shaken up when an automobile operated by L. R. DeMatio of Summer street, Quincy, skidded, crashed into a truck and then shot into a grocery store at Park and Main streets, North Reading, today.

The injured woman was Mrs. William Maxwell of Gilbert road, Reading, who was treated by Dr. Richmond of Reading for a scalp wound. Mrs. Sydney Horowitz and daughter of Atlantic were shaken up. DeMatio attempted to avoid striking the truck driven by Archie Reid of Wilmington, but the car skidded when DeMatio applied his brakes suddenly. Two plate glass windows in the store were broken and groceries were strewn about. The car was badly damaged.

Transatlantic Television Proves Partial Success in New York-London Test

Hartsdale, N. Y., Feb. 9 (A. P.).—The eye of man, aided by science, at last has been able to peer across the Atlantic, although what it has been able to see thus far has been but a distorted vision of the reality. [illegible] but a potentiality of great strength.

In the televisor of John L. Baird, British inventor, have been shown the images of a man and a woman sitting fully 3,000 miles away. The images were crude, but they were there.

For three months secret one-way ocean tests of the Baird televisor have been under way [illegible] Hart, a shortwave radio operator in this Westchester county village just outside New York.

Success Is Partial.

Success achieved was only partial, but it was enough to convince the inventor and his associates that the time had come to take the newest wonder of science out into the light for inspection.

Last night transatlantic television was demonstrated with newspapermen at both ends of operation, and they were invited to tell just what they saw, without exaggerating the merits or minimizing the defects of the experiment.

The group at this end gathered in the Hart home during the evening and Hart opened the Morse communication between 2KZ, the London station, and 2CVJ, his own set. This communication was maintained during the experiment.

Shortly before 10 o'clock Hart announced that the "vision sound" was coming through from London. This noise was very much like a bumblebee's hum and was the representation in sound of the lights and shadows of the face of the subject before an electric eye in London.

Captain O. G. Hutchinson, general manager of Baird's company, Benjamin Clapp, Baird's chief engineer, and an Associated Press reporter went to the dark cellar of the house, where the televisor was installed and saw the sound being turned back into light.

On a whirling screen about six inches by [illegible] a myriad tiny rectangles of light appeared looking like a row of tipped skyscrapers [illegible]. These rectangles began to move [illegible] each other, shift and swirl [illegible] formed in the [illegible].

Head Is Distinct.

This head became suddenly more distinct and though the vision fluttered [illegible] dimmed. It was plain. Hart telephoned down to say that London reported the head was that of [illegible] and that next [illegible] of the London Press Association would take the seat before the televisor.

The tiny oblongs of light went to [illegible] another dance and formed another head, but this time it was not so distinct, more flutters, more broken by flashes of light. But this time the mouth was seen to open and the vague head moved from side to side and nodded solemnly.

London reported then that the next subject would be the wife of [illegible] Howe of the London staff of the Associated Press, who was present with her husband.

And following this the rectangles shifted and swirled again and a different head appeared, more vague even than before and yet evidently that of a woman. It turned from full face to profile once, twice, and then suddenly was gone.

None of the images was so distinct as to be [illegible] recognizable to people who knew the sitters, though Captain Hutchinson felt that he

'DAUGHTER' OF CZAR IN N.Y.

Son of the Former Court Physician Sees in Her Playmate of Years Ago

New York, Feb. 9.—Out of the fog that held her prisoner at quarantine since Tuesday, the liner Berengaria nosed into port today; but whether her mysterious passenger, Mme. Anastasia Tchaikovsky, silent young Russian girl of 26, proclaimed daughter of the slain Czar, would emerge from the mists encompassing her life—that was a moot question.

A protruding left ankle bone, flat feet, a mole on her back—these characteristics stamp Anastasia as none other than the Grand Duchess Anastasia Nikolevena, according to her sponsors.

If the mystery girl is the grand duchess, millions of dollars and succession to the throne of the Romanoffs would be hers, for Czar Nicholas, the Czarina and all their other children and [illegible] are dead.

Only in the case of the youngest daughter, Anastasia, is there doubt. It was believed generally that she, too, perished at the hands of Soviet assassins.

The thousand and fifteen fog-bound travelers aboard the Berengaria heard tales on the way over that the Russian girl really is a demented domestic, Francesco Schanzkowsky.

Gleb Botkin, of Hempstead, N. Y., whose father was the czar's private physician, went aboard the ship to see Anastasia. But he did not call her by that name. He addressed her, "Your Highness," and declared that they had played together as children.

RICHARD DIX TO FILM BASEBALL STORY SOON

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—The big [illegible] who swing [illegible], and don the gloves in the ring, are beginning to figure [illegible] motion pictures.

Every time a film company has a baseball picture the schedule is arranged so [illegible] will start when the big games are in full swing. That is when it is impossible to coax the big boys into the picture. Richard Dix's next film, a baseball drama, "Knocking 'Em Over," starts [illegible] as [illegible] games get in [illegible].

[illegible] was written by Sam Mintz with young Dix in mind. One of the best things he ever did was "Knockout Reilly," a prize fight picture. He scores much better in athletic stories. I can never forgive Paramount for doing him [illegible] and making a [illegible] of him. He looks too thoroughly American to ever be effective in any costume.

Fred Newmeyer, the lad who so successfully directed Harold Lloyd, has been engaged to direct "Knocking 'Em Over." Newmeyer ought to be very good on the comedy angle. He excels in that direction.

ONE of the best bits of news heard in Hollywood in a long time is that Eileen Percy is well and able to resume her motion picture work. Miss Percy, who in private life is Mrs. [illegible] Busch, was desperately ill for weeks with sinus trouble. Her condition was grave enough to cause considerable alarm among her friends. Now comes the comforting word that she is about to have one of the important roles in William Haines' next picture, "He Learned About Women." We have reason to be sure of a good performance with Eileen, who learned all about the camera some years ago when she came West as Douglas Fairbanks' leading woman. [illegible] has also been added to the cast [illegible] of the picture will go into production almost any day now.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

'Greatest Thrill of Life, Seeing by Radio

By MRS. MIA HOWE
(Written for the Associated Press)

London, Feb. 9 (A.P.)—It was the greatest thrill of my life when Mr. Baird told me my image had been seen on the other side of the Atlantic.

When Mr. Baird first said we [illegible] history this morning, I [illegible] I can hardly realize it now, despite the long dispatches pouring into the office here from New York [illegible] how I looked to [illegible].

I [illegible] somewhat [illegible]. I was [illegible] when I started, but it must have been the excitement and heat from the electric lights [illegible] looks all up.

Mr. Baird [illegible] me into the chair. Then he went to another part of the laboratory to wait [illegible] in the darkened room he could see my image as it appeared at Hartsdale.

But first I had to get my face in focus. Mr. Baird [illegible] by calling [illegible] up a little [illegible] "chin up, please, just a little bit more," somewhat after the style of a photographer getting his subject in position.

Then Mr. Baird called "Splendid—please keep that pose. You are coming up fine."

And then I began to get thrilled more than ever.

The glare and heat of the electric lights bothered me only a [illegible]. I was [illegible] at the novelty of it all to think of the temporary discomfort.

In front of me was a black wall with about a foot and a half square opening. This was what might be called the lens. It was like a great wheel going round and round. It causes a succession of images of the object in front.

LIKE A "SAWMILL"

Then a [illegible] revolving at [illegible] per minute, interrupts the light reflected from the [illegible] to reach the light sensitive [illegible].

[illegible] the light passes through [illegible] spiral slot, giving a further subdivision of the image, but the remainder of the process is so technical that I do not [illegible] Mr. Baird understands it.

The apparatus as a whole looked to me like a [illegible] sawmill and frankly that's about all I know about it.

As me sitting was [illegible] English [illegible] trucks [illegible] Mr. Baird informed me the [illegible] were [illegible] Covent Garden for today's market.

And as it was nearly 5 a. m. he [illegible] congratulated me as being the first woman ever to have her image flashed across the Atlantic.

Woman Fixes Hair Before Sitting in on "Television"

London, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—New worlds were opened up early today when [illegible] Jules Verne in [illegible].

For the very first time the image of a woman was sent across despite [illegible] position in front of the transmitter [illegible] not become [illegible].

[illegible] men's faces had been [illegible] John L. Baird [illegible] of the [illegible] explained he had difficulty in finding a woman willing to attempt to sit still for twenty minutes or half an hour.

The transmission [illegible] from Baird's [illegible] in London direct into the receiving station at Hartsdale, N. Y., which had been rigged up for the occasion.

[illegible] was the first [illegible] the transmitter. Afterward W. C. Fox of the London Press Association sat for half an hour [illegible] reports [illegible] back from the United States that Fox was shown [illegible].

Then the woman [illegible] in front of the seven [illegible] incandescent lamps of 2[illegible] power [illegible].

"I am terribly thrilled," she said. "The lamps' heat—glare—nothing will [illegible] me. I am going through with it."

would probably have known that Fox was on even if he had not been warned in advance.

They were not, for instance, anything like as clear as the images carried from Washington to New York last year by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. But that was done by wire instead of radio and only over a distance of slightly more than 200 miles.

They were comparable to the visions brought in at the A. T. & T. demonstration by air from no farther than New Jersey. The vision of the dummy, in fact, was clearer than those, but the moving faces were not so strong.

Captain Hutchinson was elated at the results of the demonstration, [illegible] that with more power [illegible] two kilowatts [illegible] from the London station used transatlantic television would shortly approach perfection and [illegible] in a brief time two-way television across the ocean would be a commonplace.

[illegible] works on the system of [illegible] reflected from a face into electric waves for transmission to be picked up as sound and turned back into light [illegible] of the system, the [illegible] sufficient power for [illegible].

The greatest obstacle to good performance is interference by static or [illegible]. At this night's demonstration the visions were [illegible] scattered into a thousand [illegible] of light by the sending of [illegible] short wave Morse operator in [illegible] and another in Mexico City.

GET READY FOR WAR, WOMEN IN CONGRESS SAY

Washington, Feb. 9. (I.N.S.)—Are women pacifists?

The "feminine bloc" of Congress answered the question today by serving notice on the country that women demand preparedness for war.

Rejecting every overture of the "little navy" forces of the House, the four women in Congress took their stand with veterans of the World War in demanding that the nation be ready to meet every foe.

Members of the "feminine bloc" demonstrated their emphatic belief in the cause of preparedness by deserting administration leaders to support appropriations to expand the civilian reserve corps of the army.

All of them—Mrs. Kahn (R) of California, Mrs. Rogers (R) of Massachusetts, Mrs. North (D) of New Jersey, and Mrs. Langley (R) of [illegible] is [illegible].

Mrs. Langley, the newest member of the "feminine bloc" and the only grandmother in Congress, cast her first vote for preparedness by [illegible] to the War Department [illegible] providing increased funds for the Officers' Reserve Corps.

"We are not militarists," said Mrs. Langley today, in explaining her stand. "Nor are we pacifists. We believe in reasonable preparedness as peace insurance.

"We will welcome the day of universal peace and will work to bring it about. And one of the best means of preserving peace in our own country is to let every other nation know that we are ready to defend our honor."

Round the Links With BOBBY JONES

By ROBT. T. JONES, JR.

National Amateur, British Open and Southern Open Champion.

EVERYONE who makes a study of action photographs of expert golfers is struck by the length of time the head rem[illegible] down after the ball has been struck. This has been commented upon as a most important feature of good play, and has been urged upon the beginner as a practice worthy of emulation.

Someone, I think it was Jock Hutchison, in an effort to counteract the "head-down" propaganda, advised sensibly enough that keeping the head down too long obstructed the right shoulder and prevented the easy, natural turn after the ball was hit.

'You Did,' Says Dodge; 'I Didn't,' Says Peltzer

Chicago, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The "elbow" argument between Dr. Otto Peltzer, German running ace, and Ray Dodge, Illinois Athletic Club star, will be settled at the I. A. C. track meet tomorrow night, if at all.

Dodge has charged and Peltzer has denied it, that the German runner elbowed him at the start at the Millrose games in New York last week. Dodge lost the event to Peltzer by about six yards.

"If Dr. Peltzer had not elbowed me," Dodge said, "I would have won that race."

"Anyone who has ever seen me race knows that I do not know other running style," Dr. Peltzer explained. "At the Millrose games [illegible] with my arms [illegible] in my natural style, I [illegible] bump [illegible] and [illegible] accidentally fell off the track. But it was unintentional.

"I assure him there will be no bumping on the track tomorrow night."

The athletes will meet in the 1,000-metre distance tomorrow night. Dodge says it will be his final appearance on the track and that he is out for a win.

KERR RAPS NEW GRID RULES

By ANDY KERR,
Washington and Jefferson Coach.

Washington, Pa., Feb. 9.—The restrictions placed on the lateral pass by the new rule adopted by the National Football Rules Committee has sounded the death knell of that offensive weapon. The double and triple passes combined with fake passes were used almost entirely by the W. and J. eleven during the 1927 season, in which it was not defeated.

They encouraged the employment of the lateral pass last year, and I [illegible] it to be [illegible] would have [illegible] about development of a more spectacular and deceptive offense.

The new rule, however, sounds its death knell. Coaches who used it last year and planned to use it even more extensively next Fall will have to return to more conservative football.

HAMBONE AND MONTE EACH SEEK KAYO

With both boxers and their managers boasting that the other fellow will be knocked out before the expiration of the ten rounds the contest between Joe "Hambone" Kelley of South Boston and Joe Monte of Brockton, which will feature the meeting of the Suffolk A. A. at the Arena Monday night, is unique.

Of course it is customary for rival boxers to boast that they will knock their opponents kicking but as a matter of fact few of them really believe what they say and are usually prepared to box a cautious contest relying upon their respective styles to win the decision. But not so with "Hambone" and Monte. Each is positively certain that he will end the affair with a knockout ... and they are so ... about their ... that they ... willing to wager on their statements.

TILDEN READY FOR FIGHT

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The perennial wrangle of "Big Bill" Tilden, the turbulent figure of modern sports, and the high officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association threatens to crop forth anew at the annual meeting of the net governing body, which will be held here at the Drake Hotel tomorrow and Saturday.

This particular quarrel, if any should develop, will concern the decision of the U. S. L. T. A. to make its bid for the challenge round in the Davis Cup play in the American zone and the consequent absence of Tilden from the team.

The lanky Philadelphian declared here last Summer that America's greatest chance of regaining the International tennis trophy would be in battling its way through the European zone. Playing on the hard courts of Europe would put the Yankees in fine fettle for the match with the French should they be successful.

In accordance with these plans he arranged for competition in Europe with Frank Hunter. If he carries through with his plans he will be out of the preliminary Davis play at least.

The sum-total of pipe-joy

IF YOU could take an adding-machine and set down all the qualities you demand in a pipe-tobacco, such as fragrance, coolness, mildness, satisfaction, when you pulled the lever, the total would read: "Prince Albert." You can prove it with a pipe and a tin of P. A.

Throw back the hinged lid and revel in that aroma of the world's most popular pipe-tobacco. Put a load into the bowl of your pipe and light up. Draw that cool, refreshing smoke deep down and exhale slowly. That's Prince Albert! That's living! You'll go to it from breakfast to bedtime.

Prince Albert leads all other brands in sales, because it leads in satisfaction. The word "satisfaction" has worn a little thin from much use, but a pipe and P.A. give it an entirely new meaning. You'll say so on your very first pipe-load, and you'll be a Prince Alberteer after that!

This tin contains TWO full ounces of what it takes to make a man smoke-happy.

Moving the Famous Linden

AS the historical Linden tree before the "Stadtschloss" in Potsdam, Germany, is proving a serious hindrance to the city's present traffic, an attempt will be made to transport it to the adjoining park.

Martha Lee Provides Recipes for Pears

Martha Lee Radio Chat as broadcast from Station WLOE.

CANNED PEARS have achieved their share of popularity because the solid cells of the fruit have adapted themselves so wonderfully to the canner's art. Hotels and restaurants use the big Bartlett pears to enhance exclusive dishes from their cuisines. Why not use them in the home?

Martha Lee

Here are some recipes which prove that there is a use for this fruit in every course of the meal.

Pear, Grape and Plum Cocktail—Drain a No. 1 can of pears and halve. Halve and seed 1 cup of Malaga grapes. Peel 4 ripe plums and stone, dicing the pulp. Mix them together and chill. Serve in tall glasses. Pour over 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup orange juice and the pear juice mixed with 3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar. This recipe serves 2 persons.

Francenia Pears with Roast Lamb—Roast lamb as usual in a very hot oven, searing for half an hour at 500 degrees and continuing at 450 degrees, allowing 15 minutes to each pound and 15 to 20 minutes extra. About 45 minutes before done add potatoes which have been par-boiled ten minutes, and let brown around the roast, basting occasionally.

At 15 minutes before done, drain the juice from a can of pears and place the pears on a platter near the roast. Fill the hole in each pear with a spoonful of currant jelly. Allow to brown, basting with fat in the pan. Serve the lamb on a platter with the Francenia potatoes and Francenia pears placed alternately around it.

Sweet Pickled Pear Salad—Arrange eight halves of canned pears which have been pickled on individual lettuce nests. Garnish with one half cup of heavy cream whipped to half cup mayonnaise and one-half cup of the sweet pickle syrup. This recipe makes eight portions.

Pear Conde—Cook three-fourths cup rice in two and one-half cups boiling salted water until the water is absorbed. Mold in a ring mold and chill. Turn out and place eight large halves of canned pears around the mold. Fill halves of pears with strawberry jam. Thin some of the jam down with pear syrup and pour over the rice mold. Fill the center of the ring with sweetened whipped cream. This recipe serves eight persons.

Luncheon Salad—Lay halves of large canned pears in a nest of lettuce leaves. Fill the hole of each pear with cream cheese. Sprinkle grated nutmeg on top of this cheese and place in the ice-box to get very cold. Just before serving pour over French dressing. Serve with stuffed olives and cheese chips.

Pear and Pimento Salad—Use canned pears in slightly lengthwise. Arrange on crisp lettuce hearts and pour over French dressing. Cut strips of canned pimento and lay them in lattice fashion across the top of the pear.

Touraine Fruit Salad—Remove pulp from one grapefruit and one large orange for you may use the canned grapefruit. With a French vegetable cutter scoop out balls from canned pears, using as many pear balls as orange pulp. Drain the juice from all the fruits and moisten with French dressing. Take a quart salad bowl and line with alternate sections of grapefruit and orange. Fill the center with the remainder of the fruit.

Place a canned artichoke bottom (marinated with French dressing) on top and garnish with small triangular pieces cut from thin slices of ruffle and three or four small heart lettuce leaves.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Colonel Lindbergh's Own Story

"I landed again, but I could not locate the board, so I moved my coat where I thought it should be and took off again. The second time I had placed my coat within twenty feet of the data board, but it required several minutes' search in the thick mesquite to finally locate it," says Lindy.

the United States that would greatly jeopardize the success of an over-night non-stop flight to St. Louis. From this flight I expected to obtain some very important data for use on the final hop from New York.

On the afternoon of May 9, Dean Smith, chief of the San Diego Weather Bureau, predicted fair flying conditions for the next day. See next morning I took off from Rockwell Field at 7:54 a. m. (Pacific time) I took off from North Island with 250 gallons of gasoline for the flight to St. Louis, escorted by two Army observation planes and one of the Ryan monoplanes. We circled North Island and San Diego, then headed on a compass course for St. Louis.

The ship passed over the first ridge of mountains, about 4,000 feet very easily with reduced throttle. The escorting planes turned back at the mountains and I passed on over the desert and the Salton Sea alone. And at sunset I was over the deserts and mountains of Western Arizona.

The moon was well above the horizon and with the exception of a short period late in dawn, I was able to distinguish the contour of the country the entire night. I flew a compass course, passing at intervals over snow-capped ridges, deserts and fertile valleys. One of the mountain ranges was over 12,000 feet high and completely snow covered. I cleared this range by about five hundred feet and went on over the plains beyond.

The mountain passed quickly and long before daybreak I was flying over the prairies of Western Kansas. At dawn I located my position about twenty miles south of the course, just east of Wichita, Kansas. At 8 a. m., Central Standard time, I passed over Gilbert Field and landed at 8.20 a. m., May 11, fourteen hours and twenty-one minutes after leaving the Pacific Coast.

The weather during the entire distance had been exactly as Dean Smith had predicted.

At 8.13 the next morning (May 20th) I took off from Lambert Field for New York. The wind was right and the weather clear for the greater part of the distance. Over the Allegheny mountains, however, the sky was overcast and some of the mountain tops were shrouded in flying clouds and I followed the rivers.

At 5.30 p. m., New York Daylight Saving time, I landed at Curtiss Field, Long Island.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

NEWSPAPER work is hard on illusions. One sees such appalling cruelty, cowardice and treachery sometimes, everything fine and [illegible] blotted out.

When those times came I used to hate life. I let my bitterness run amuck. I grew rat at God and Man and all this futile beastly farce we call existence. I would emerge from those hate orgies sick and beaten, poisoned by my own downpour. But I don't any more. I have found a formula that carries me through the blackest storms.

Now, when some new, vicious evidence presents itself and I find my self slipping, I say—

STOP! THINK!

Think about life.

Think what a long, long way life has come and with what infinite pains each particle of progress has been bought.

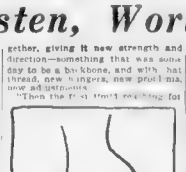

"Look at your body. Consider its history.

"Think of the gap between the human body of 1928 and that first squirming mass of protoplasm in a primeval swamp.

"Billions and billions and billions of years.

"First the long ages in the water. Green scum living in water—learning how to move around in water—growing stronger and more complicated in water. Something definite answering to the scum, like a three. Something pulling the scum together, giving it new strength and direction—something that was going to be a backbone, and with that thread, new dangers, new problems, new adjustments.

"Then that first tentative step for a wider life for land life, and life. But still the old grip on the water, home and habits. ALWAYS THE GRIP ON THE HOME AND HABITS WHILE THE BODY TRIES TO ADJUST TO THE NEW HOME AND HABITS.

"Bodies evolving that could live in both air and water. Newts. Amphibians. So gradually, the long upward climb. Skin, shells, backbones, gills, tails, legs, wings, feathers, hair, arms, hands, guns—MAN. Thousands of changes and untold years of change.

"ALL THAT TROUBLE JUST TO MAKE A STILL IMPERFECT BODY THAT COULD EAT AND SLEEP AND MATE AND FIGHT. AND THAT'S ALL. JUST IT TAKE TO MAKE A MIND THAT WILL BE BRAVE AND KIND AND HONEST AND GENEROUS AND FAIR?

"Why, our evolution is still at its beginning.

After all these years, our bodies still remember the old homes and cling to the old habits. At times of danger or surprise we still function as though we crawled in the slime, clung in trees. Then why should we be so discouraged if our mind is still slow in the slime, or cower in the dark?

LOOK at yourself. You're still wearing toe nails, old dear, though the need for them passed with the mastodon. And yet you're amazed and disgusted when your neighbor exhibits toenails on his soul.

"Snap out of it! Use your head! Give God a chance!"

That's what I say when I get all smoked up over life. Sometimes it does me down. But not for long. FOR I'M STILL MORE FITTED FOR A MIOCENE CAVE THAN I AM FOR A CIVILIZED OFFICE.

"You Said It, Marceline"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

LIFE is like a DOG—
A big dog who can GROWL
Horribly. Some people LOVE dogs
Instinctively. Others seem INDIFFERENT. Those who have been
BITTEN by the dog—FEAR him.
And those who want FAVORS
Often try to BRIBE him.
It CAN'T be done!
This dog, LIFE, is sometimes
Playful and EAGER for sport,
But he is not a PAMPERED pup
That we can pick up casually
And TRAIN.
No man can keep Life lying
PEACEABLY in his lap.
For this dog has got man
The EAR and shakes him
DANCE—and how!
When man RUNS away the dog
CHASES him, barking;
When man STOOPS down
Nervous and AFRAID, and
Puts out a timid hand,
Life SNARLS! but when
Man stands UPRIGHT and calls
"Come here! I am your MASTER!"
And then FIRMLY puts his Head and looks him in the EYE this dog, Life, LICKS
His hand and, satisfied
Lies WAITING at his feet.

Home Hints

If, as sometimes happens, it is necessary or desired to keep cut flowers for some little time before they should be put, dry, between layers of waxing in a perfectly cool and airtight drawer, or better still, a small zinc-lined box. In this way they will keep perfectly fresh for an astonishing time. For the decoration of churches, for instance, when prices rush up at festivals, suitable flowers can be secured well before and kept in this way.

A piece of cheese will not mold nearly so fast if it is wrapped in a cloth wrung out in vinegar.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct, at an informal dinner, to fold the napkin or just put it to the left of the plate unfolded?

2. Should one remove the tissue paper in greeting booklets before mailing?

3. Is it proper to leave on one's plate a little food that is served at an informal dinner?

NOTICE

IF you are having only taxi meal at this home, you do not fold the napkin after the meal—place it as it is, unfolded, at the left of your place.

2. It is always better to remove the tissue paper from greeting booklets, cards, invitations and announcements. The paper sent with the card or a sheet of letter-paper gives an inartistic appearance to the whole. If the engraving is dry—and it will be a week after the engraving has been finished—there is no longer any necessity for the tissue paper.

3. No, the suggestion of leaving food "for politeness" is not a sensible one, nor a reasonable one and is indulged in only in countries that are so rich in food that they do not need to be careful with it. The war took away that ridiculous custom and now people eat all of their food if they wish to, and do not if they do not wish to.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to a nearby town to be gone for several weeks. Would it be perfectly proper for me (an unmarried girl of twenty-six) to remain at a hotel alone? What is the better to stay at the Young Women's Christian Association, and is it possible to do this?

WHILE it would be splendid if it were not necessary for you to travel alone, life does not always take the pattern that we wish it to and there is no reason why you should not stop at a hotel if you wish. If you are dignified and circumspect in your behavior, as I am sure you are, there is no reason for anyone to criticize you. Remember, that when you register, you write the "Miss" before your name.

Write the Young Women's Christian Association of the town to which you are going if you think that you would prefer not to stop in a hotel. They will be glad to send you a list of homes that they have investigated and can safely recommend to you.

No Reverence for Revers is shown by the foremost designers, who are taking various privileges in handling them in all sorts of ways that quite disguise their identity. On some coats the revers are so extremely wide that they seem jabots, while on some others they are rolled in the form of a narrow bolster, from which float long streamer ends. Tying up the ends of tuxedo revers at the back of the neck is a flat scarf treatment seen on some of the latest suit jackets and Spring coats.

Lasting After Lustre—Spring millinery is embracing fire trimmings—flowers, quills and ribbons all have the fire finish and dull felt or straw hat bobbies are often embroidered or appliqued in cellophane straw. Many of the latest sports hats are woven of angora wool and cellophane straw.

A Story of Mad Moonlight Kisses and a Wonderful Young Girl

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Jerry King, good-looking, charming and 19, meets Saxon Rhodes, a young Boston architect, and falls in love with him at first sight. Her fascinating mother, Marza, warns her that idealists like Saxon make unsatisfactory husbands.

Marza tells Jerry she hopes she is not counting on marrying Saxon—that he has not enough money. Wondering if she had better give Saxon up she gets a reassuring note from him.

Six months after the moonlight kiss Jerry confesses to Saxon that she is madly in love with him.

They meet often and late one afternoon she comes into his office and his uncle, to whom he owes everything, discovers him kissing her.

Saxon tries to argue himself into a belief that love is the only thing that counts and gaily makes plans with Jerry for their future.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

'You'll Get Caught One of These Times, Jerry,' Said Bud to Her

"You play fast and loose, Jerry," said Bud.

"That's wonderful for you, Saxon," said Jerry.

CHAPTER 16.

A GIRL and a boy talking very earnestly kept walking and walking. Sometimes they took hands and ran. The crimson flush of the Autumn sunset illumining the hills.

"It makes me think of Byron's thrilling line: "The mountains look on Marathon and Marathon looks on the sea. Bud—don't you wish you wrote that?"

"I wish lots of things a heck of a sight more!"

The boy, who was exceedingly young with his hair polished and sleek to his head as a coat of varnish turned explosively: 'You play fast and loose, Jerry. You'll get caught one of these days."

"Not wishing me any harm, I trust? Don't be snooty, Bud, darling."

She smiled dreamingly.

The boy holding her hand, squeezed it roughly: "You've not given me one date since you met him."

"I need that hand, please. As you know, I found you awfully nice—but too expensive."

Jerry—all right about that I didn't play square. I'm on the wagon for good—really. Listen—you don't know what you're doing He's the first fellow that ever stirred you, isn't he? And you're just gone wild on it"

"How wild?" she grinned in his eyes, waiting while he lighted her cigarette.

"Wild enough to be waiting for him to marry you!"

"I'd adore that. Think, Bud what an inspiring mother and child scene I'd make."

The boy brushed on impatiently: "And you've always wanted to travel . . . to go vagabonding about the world. Remember last New Year's Eve? You said you'd marry me if I'd agree to start on a globe-trotting expedition with you; if I'd be game to try every dangerous thing that came along . . . gamble at Monte Carlo, pray in St. Mark's. That's what you said.

"And Jerry—that's the exciting, thrilling kind of life you want! You're flinging it all away—all of it!"

"Yes," she thought dreamily, and kept gazing at nothing. "I'm going out like that to him. I can't stop myself. Nothing else counts—nothing even exists——"

She took Bud's hand and swung it merrily: "Be good and keep that promise, Bud, won't you?"

"If you'll go out with me. . . ."

"To help you keep it? Sure!"

At the house she bade Bud good-by, calling after him a bright plea. "Oh, remember!"

On the street in front of her mother's house machines were gathered. They would be having cocktails now. Wait until they were gone. She felt lonely tonight. She didn't know why.

Flinging things away! She knew that she was.

She hadn't meant to care like this. Not for years and years. After she'd done all the brilliant, dangerous things. Then, when the hot-tide was at an ebb; when she was well along, approaching thirty, poised and sure of herself like Marza, then she would probably marry. But this was the last thing a person with rainbow longings would count on.

But now she stood at the house and seeing herself and Saxon entering a wilderness where no one had ever lived before . . dwelling there. And she, sitting under a giant tree, a child playing at her feet—her child and Saxon's. She flushed and closed her eyes. This scene was more haunting than all other scenes. Her heart filled and filled.

He was sitting in his office, the now completed sketches laid before him. There was one lovely sketch in color. He kept looking to the door and wondering if Jerry would come. He wanted to show her this.

The door opened. He was about to spring to it, face lighted with pleasure. He saw Paul and turned with a soft, muttered: "Oh, damn!"

Paul was at his side, reaching not quite to his shoulder. "Pleased with them?"

"Yes," said Saxon, studying his uncle nervously, "but are you?"

"You won't see anything finer anywhere. By the way—how soon do you figure to go over?"

"Two years. I can't manage it a moment sooner."

"Two years. You'll be 27. And by the time you've returned and got started again, well past thirty. Too late. If it's to do you any good, you've got to go now! Before you get side-tracked. I've been thinking this. Better start by the end of the month. Get there and started at work before the first of the year."

Casually, like that! Plucked up bodily. No ifs or ands!

Late that evening he came to Jerry. He told her—blurted it out because he was stunned and not quite realizing it himself.

She looked at him with very large startled eyes—eyes that glowed, yet had little sparks of fear. "Really?" said she, vaguely. "Really going—oh, that's wonderful for you, Saxon—isn't that wonderful!" She came running and burned her face against him. For a moment he thought she was crying.

But she looked up laughing—impish: "You're taking me! I'll stow away. You bet I will!" Then, solemnly, "When, Saxon?"

"In two weeks."

"We only have two weeks more—only that long?"

She kept nodding and smiling. Suddenly she pressed her face against his coat sleeve, curling her hand in his. After a long moment she reached her hands to his neck, kissed his lips.

Flame-sweet purple eyes they seemed as they turned so eagerly—with such pathetic bravery to his. "I love you, Saxon. . . oh, very much. But do you want to go away thinking of me—waiting for me?"

"I don't want to go away at all, Jerry. . . . Oh if I could take you with me. I wonder why that should be wrong. . . ."

She listened. She felt breathless and weak. Clinging to him she laughed in a rapt, reckless way: "Wrong? What is wrong? That you love me—want me?"

He pressed his face against her shoulder: "Dear, wild woodland thing—you're not real! You're too sweet."

He held her in front of him and looked down longingly. He thought: Isn't she young! She didn't seem so young before. I shouldn't leave her. "I'm going to regret this."

"Answer me, Saxon—oh, please . . . and say only the veriest truth. Will you go away thinking of me. Loving me? Wanting to come back to me?"

"Wanting you—loving you. And coming back to YOU. It's a fine, gorgeous thing for you. It's glorious!" Then oddly, flinging her head back with a faint, quivering laugh: "Years can't make a difference—to ME!"

"Americanitis"

The speed at which we Americans live has given rise to a group of serious nervous and high blood pressure disturbances aptly described as "Americanitis". It's responsible for many break-downs and deaths at middle age.

Men who work hard, smoke hard and play hard overburden the liver whose job it is to keep the blood and system clean of poisons formed in food waste. Then follows an insidious toxic condition which saps strength and energy, increases blood pressure and hardens arteries.

The liver occasionally needs a little help and there's nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few make a vast difference. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol.

'The Constant Flame'; Emily and Kent Make an Important Visit

By WINNIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER 50.

It was a grim-faced young fellow who awaited her in the morning.

When he put a match to a cigarette she saw his fingers shake.

"Emily," he began, "you know what this means. My sister admits she went there, visited Deep Valley Inn the night Wickert was killed. She'd been driving around alone and stopped. Sounds incredible. Avis hasn't been quite herself lately.

"She said she left the man within a few minutes after Kathryn did and came home. He was there alone and very drunk. You'll probably not believe that.'

"You believe it?"

"Yes. Avis has plenty of faults but she doesn't lie. She's too arrogant for one thing."

He looked at her in a stricken way and she saw that his chin was up. The old straightforwardness, the old pride—this was the Kent she had known.

But she understood her duty well enough. It would be to go to Marty at once with the story and let him accuse Avis. It was a matter of Kent's sister or her own.

Yet he seemed to be waiting. He hoped, some way, she would believe the story. Why should she?

But he had believed Kitten. She knew that now, she no longer was influenced by Marty. Kent had given Kitten the benefit of the doubt when everything was against her.

She got up timidly and came around the table ... I believe ... too, Kent. ... wait? ... must be ... else! someone ... us to find. Why, you and I together—"

She stopped then, not so much because she realized what she was asking as because of the light in his face.

He took both her hands, holding them in a firm, warm clasp. "I might have known! That's the way I've always remembered, you, Emily. Gentle and sweet. A fine thing, to trust me so."

He talked to her then of what they must do.

He put her into his car and headed for the fatal Inn. He was so thoughtful.

"Have you considered, Emily? You're tacitly accepting for your sister suspicion that belongs to mine. You have only to say a few words and end it."

"That doesn't matter, Kent. There'll be an end to it soon."

"It's only—of course you know what it would do to my work if this became public. Morrow and his cutthroats—you believe I'm honest in my work? That it's unselfish? I'd like you to think so."

She ... to the old pride in the boy, pleading for her approval. "I do think so. I've been so—so proud of you, Kent." And the gray eyes misted as they looked into his.

He put his hand over hers where ... giving it ... pressure. ... bless you," he said.

They went over the grounds and the veranda and the private dining room at the inn thoroughly, endlessly. But they found little; only two objects which might have a bearing on the case.

Caught in the edge of the shutter at the window on the veranda they found a shred of lace; a few fine black silk threads of unusual ... Kent laid it carefully away in his billfold.

And almost under the window where two boards left a shallow crevice in the floor they discovered what at first seemed to be a small golden splinter. Examination disclosed it a dagger, not more than an inch long, formed of some tough, yellow substance. This too, Kent put away.

He drew up before the Wickert house in a fine section of Dedham. "Pay a call on the widow," he remarked.

A gloomy faced servant showed them into the drawing room, a dim apartment with drawn shades.

Emily thought she never has seen a face so colorless nor eyes so bright, nor a figure so graceful under a lace mantilla, when the woman came in. Kent asked a question or two but Bianca answered with ... quivering from head to foot she burst into a tirade against the dead man. Finally she began to move swiftly about, making frantic, demented gestures.

It was when Kent inquired if she had seen Nicky the night of the murder that she hurled herself from the room.

In the door, however, she turned about and said something in Spanish, jerking her head. A tall comb slipped from her hair; after she had gone Emily picked it up from the ... not until they were in the car again did she realize that she still carried it.

"Take it back later," Kent said. "I'll want to see her again."

He dropped Emily at the shop and she told him good-bye rather absently, eyes on the comb.

Once inside she became lively enough. With a great burst of energy she pulled a dusty volume from a shelf and searched the pages. When she found what she sought her elbows went up on the table and her chin down on her hands. She studied an old color print very carefully.

It was a plate of Spanish combs. And one of the pictures was almost a photographic likeness of the comb that lay beside it on the table, shimmering in a dull, yellow way.

Almost, but not quite.

She went at once to the telephone and called the District Attorney's office.

"Kent," she said, "I think I've found something. If I could see you now?"

But he was going over to Norwood and couldn't wait. He went on quickly: "I've an errand at the club later. Why not dine with me there?"

She accepted eagerly enough though later shyness overwhelmed her at the thought of dining at the club with Kent. She'd have called him and broken the engagement then, had it been possible.

At least she told herself, she could go home and put on another dress, not shame him by the little old blue one all splashed with dye she now wore.

She was choosing another work dress when pale gold flounces caught her eye from the back of the closet. She took down the frock she had been saving such a long time. So dainty and sweet it was, such a sheen it put in her hair that she couldn't resist it. She looked very much like a pale, yellow rose when she met Kent at the club.

He was waiting for her in the lounge, a certain restlessness in his face which changed to admiration as he came forward.

"How beautiful you are, Emily. Exquisite as a song."

She flushed and kept her eyes down, fearful of the joy flooding her heart.

When they were seated he got out the minute yellow dagger and the shred of lace and placed them side by side on the table. "Now let's hear what you have," he said.

She felt again the little shiver along her spine, the sudden, breathless excitement which had gripped her earlier in the day.

"I think Mrs. Wickert shot him," she declared, trying to keep her voice even. "Anyway, I'm sure she was there."

He did not seem surprised. ... she saw the blue eyes narrow. From her handbag she took Bianca's comb and placed it on the table. The comb was heavy, yellow tortoise shell, so hard and polished as to look like gold. And the curious design of the carving centered about three medallions, each shot through with a small dagger.

"You see, Kent? The dagger is part of it. The comb may have dropped out of her hair as she stood there watching Nicky through the window, and that bit broke off.

"When she stooped for it the lace mantilla she wears caught on the shutter and those threads were torn away.

"You see, I know something about fabrics and I believe that is genuine Spanish lace.

'Sally's Shoulders'; An Episode in a Thrilling Serial

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER 73.

"Can't you stop this work for a minute and come out on the front porch or some place where I can see you alone?" Ted asked, frowning. 'Here, I've come all this way to see you this afternoon—quit work early and everything—and now you won't talk to me."

"Why, yes I will," answered Sally "only I can't stop what I'm doing. At 6 o'clock I've got to be dressed, too. I'm going to wait on table tonight."

"Well, I'd rather see you doing that than dancing for the mob,' said Ted, in a depressed sort of way.

Sally's eyes widened. "I don't see anything wrong about doing that, either," she said bluntly. "John Nye had a fit over my doing it, just as you did, and just as my mother did. But I never could see what was so awful about it, myself."

"Well, I'll tell you why I hated to see you do it," Ted answered. "I couldn't help noticing the way the men all looked at you—and I hated the notion of their eyes going all over you—like flies crawling all over you, somehow."

Shocked, Sally stared at him. She never had thought of that in all the time when she had shaken her shoulders and kicked up her light little heels around the big dining room. She had thought the men who came there to eat were watching her dancing, not the lithe young body. "To the pure all things are pure."

"Oh!" said Sally, and her voice was very small. "I see."

She wondered if that was why John Nye had been so angry and disgusted with her—because she had made herself a target for men's eyes. Was that why he had said to her, "This is a fine thing for you to be doing" in that rough, harsh way? . . . Because he hated to see the sister of the woman he was in love with, cheapen herself by dancing in public? . . . Was that it?

"No fellow likes to see other men giving his girl the once-over," Ted's voice was running on, close to her. "When a fellow's crazy about a girl he wants her all to himself, and he doesn't want her to do anything that folks might criticize her for. It's all right for the other fellow's girl to smoke and drink and flirt, and so on, but—"

"Don't talk any more Billy Sunday stuff to me!" Sally blazed out at him. "I don't smoke and drink and flirt, and I'm not going to be scolded for things I don't do! You make me sick, Ted Sloan! I danced for the money there was in it. The money for Aunt Em and me—and it was you who put me up to it! Now you just take your little lecture course and run along!"

She went into the dining-room with a service for Beau and Mabel, who had dropped in for a free meal, bringing the baby with them.

Sally carried the tiny thing up to her own room, rolled it up in a blanket on the foot of her bed, and gave it its bottle.

Mabel was full of gossip and chatter that night.

"I'm still working for Mr. Nye," she gurgled, with her little mouth full of cream of corn soup. "I gave up the job for two days—and I just couldn't STAND taking care of the baby and washing dishes all day. So I hired a girl for $12 a week, and went back to the office! I had a letter from Millie, too. She met the most wonderful man on shipboard—a South American who has a coffee plantation. She was all steamed up about him!"

"Trust her to meet a man, no matter where she happens to be!" snapped Aunt Em, coming in with fresh rolls and butter just in time to hear this last bit of news. "She'd find a man if there was only one left in the world—and land him too no matter how many other women were chasing him."

"She didn't land John Nye," observed Mabel, with the wise air of a young owl.

"She didn't eh? Well she had him running around like an electric train for a good many months!" Aunt Em came back at her.

"She lost out, all the same," replied Mabel. "She tried to keep him and Davidson on the same string, and she lost out with both of them. Crossed wires, Aunt Em!"

Aunt Em whipped the napkin from the dish of hot rolls.

"Well, that won't bother her!" she predicted. "She'll probably marry this South American. If he has money, you can just bet she will! Like all cats, she'll land on her feet every time!" And she swung around and went stiffly back to the kitchen.

Sally lingered.

"Where's your orchestra?" asked Mabel.

"We—decided to let it go," answered Sally.

"Aren't you dancing any more?" Mabel went on.

"No."

"What's the big idea?" Mabel wanted to know next. "Don't you know people won't come to a tomb like this?" Her piercing gaze traveled around the empty dining-room.

"Yes," they will. They'll come to any place where there is good food,' declared Sally, quoting from Aunt Em. But her heart was not so brave as her words sounded.

However, that night business was good.

"I told you we'd put it over. I told you that people would keep on coming here, now that they know how good our dinners always are!" Aunt Em triumphed when she emptied the cash register at midnight, and called it a day.

But she was wrong, after all.

For by the end of two weeks word had gone around that the inn had let its orchestra go, and that there was nothing to be had there but food—not even ginger ale and cracked ice.

On the last Saturday night in the month Sally came downstairs at 10 o'clock with a pile of clean table linen over her arm and stopped dead still at the bottom of the long-winding flight, her face white with surprised terror.

Two motorcycle policemen were crossing the threshold from the front porch. They looked at her, said nothing, and walked across the hall to the wide doorway, looking over the handful of people at tables in the dining-room.

Sally looked them over, too. . . . Suppose any of them did happen to have liquor with them! Suppose they did!

"Aunt Em and I would have to go out of business altogether!" she told herself, and her lovely, soft face was quite haggard as she walked slowly up behind the two policemen and waited breathlessly.

Sally's fear-stricken eyes swept the dining room, going swiftly from group to group.

There was not a single bowl of cracked ice upon any of the white-draped tables.

Breathing more freely, Sally spoke to the two policemen who stood beside her in the wide doorway with the curious gaze of the diners fixed upon them.

"What is this—a raid upon our perfectly nice little inn?" she asked, and her voice sounded as lighthearted as though her heart were not racing with fright.

"We just came to have a look around," he said with something like apology in his voice. "Just a little look around."

"I see," answered Sally, and walked out into the pantry with her armful of fresh linen.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound." -Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

Gives Your Hair Unusual Beauty

The attractiveness of even the most beautiful women depends upon the loveliness of their hair.

Fortunately, beautiful hair is now easily obtained. It is simply a matter of shampooing.

Proper shampooing makes the hair soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

It leaves the hair soft, silky and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

The horses and the cows and the chickens loved Frisby—and he loved them.

CHAPTER IV

IT was the 8th of August, 1898, and, as usual at that time of the year, Mister Frisby was wearing the white shoes mother gave him. He always said they were easier on his feet than any shoes he ever had.

He had promised to meet her in front of the livery stable, as she was to accompany him in a ride to South Bend, Ind., where Mr. Frisby was to deliver an address on temperance at the Chautauqua.

They got into the buggy and had driven quite a little way before my mother noticed a note tied to the buggy whip.

Glancing at it, she saw, scribbled in Mrs. Frisby's handwriting, a note which said, "Ahmer, I trust you!"

My mother was furious. To this day she looks back upon that humiliating occasion with a pang of anger and vexation.

Frisby, of course, snatched the note and tore it into a thousand bits, which he stuffed into his mouth and swallowed.

Not a word was spoken. That night—

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. No drugs, for he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are sound and his little bowels are normal, even when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be—his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes.

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in this air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infant. And how they love the taste!

One word of warning: get the pure, real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind doctors specify. And with every bottle comes a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother. Remember; tell your druggist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

Civic Leaders and Climate Help Growth of Seattle

By B. C. FORBES

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 9

ROMANCE? Here it is.

Seattle has a citizen, still hale and hearty, who was at the birth on this spot of the original white settlement of twenty-one souls, and who today looks upon that settlement blossoming into a veritable metropolis nearing the half-million population mark.

B. C. Forbes

To stir your imagination, quicken your patriotism, fan your enthusiasm and fire your ambition and determination —travel.

Why Seattle? Why its founding? Why its phenomenal growth? Because Seattle is where a world city had to be, comes the ringing answer.

Supplement that with the statement that Seattle has been blessed with vigorous, two-fisted civic leaders, and with a climate that radiates health, and you begin to understand the whyfor of this city's Aladdin-like history.

Seattle's crescent-shaped harbor ranks among the half-dozen choicest in the world. It is the western terminus of more transcontinental railroads than any other Pacific coast gateway. Seattle is 329 miles nearer China, Japan and the Philippines than more southerly cities.

Seattle is a long way from New York's Broadway—measured by miles. But measured by transportation costs, it is nearer Broadway and the populous east than are such inland cities as Kansas City, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Louisville and even Chicago.

The water rate on certain commodities from Seattle to New York actually is the same as the cost of hauling these commodities from Minneapolis to Chicago. Transportation-wise, Seattle is nearer the largest markets than certain cities that proclaim themselves located at America's geographical centre.

After transportation, industry.

The lumber industry alone brings into the State of Washington more than a million dollars of new money every business day—$350,000,000 a year. Load one year's cut of six billion feet of lumber into box cars, and the train would stretch from New York to Denver.

Fishing pours into this city more money than the sea yields to any other American city. North Pacific and Alaska fishing represent a $60,000,000-a-year industry.

The Pacific Northwest is a mineral Eldorado. From Montana comes copper unending; from Idaho, lead and zinc; from Washington, coal and minerals. The total wealth given up by these mines is estimated at five billion dollars. And Seattle ships much of it.

The farms of the Pacific Northwest empire normally produce $500,000,000 worth a year, including 120,000,000 bushels of wheat, 45,000,000 bushels of oats and nearly half the nation's commercial apple crop.

America's $7,200,000 purchase at the top of the Pacific ocean has proved somewhat profitable. Alaska since then has exported (chiefly through Seattle) $360,000,000 of gold, a total of $574,000,000 of minerals, $668,000,000 of fish products, $108,000,000 of furs. Each year Alaska buys $40,000,000 worth of goods, mostly from Seattle.

Try some day to take the now popular holiday trip to this fascinating realm of our national domain.

Think of this: There is an average of one sailing a day out of Puget Sound for the Orient.

British, Japanese and Americans are waging a battle for transpacific supremacy; the prize, the mounting commerce between the United States and the 600,000,000 people across the Pacific. The prize, indeed, is even greater, because if these foreign nations can drive the American flag off the Pacific Ocean they will strike a deadly blow, not only to American shipping, but to America's commercial strength, and, even more serious, her security as a world power. Too bad there was not more truth in Senator Oddie's fantastic complaint that the entire shipping on the Pacific was monopolized by one American.

country trying to annex Canada. That annexation idea is old and foolish. The United States is glad to have a good pace maker and finds it in the people of Canada.

Also Canada is our best customer, buying here more than the British mother country buys. For several months in 1927 Canada was the best customer we had in the world.

We helped the Canadian Northwest, as we did all countries, by supplying a short cut through the Panama Canal. Canada reciprocates by buying of us.

When the St. Lawrence Canal goes through both nations will be better off. Friendship, co-operation, constructive competition should be the program.

A British film, telling the story of Nurse Cavell, shot as a spy by the Germans, shows the nurse refusing to have her eyes bound, erect, eight men aiming at her. One soldier refuses to fire and is shot dead, in the picture.

A German official report, contradicting the film story, says the nurse was brought out with her eyes bound, and fell in a faint, "whereupon an officer, kneeling to aim, shot her." That makes it a little worse than the British film makes it. An unfortunate "official denial."

The Senate will pass some kind of anti-third-term bill, making two terms the law, instead of a tradition. It should be two ELECTED terms. A man elected once should have a second term in mind. No matter how good he is, that makes him a better President.

Gratitude is a sense of favors to come.

Senator Borah advocates only one term, a mistake.

It takes a President one term to get over the excitement of being President and get down to real work.

Two terms by election of the people would be a good rule.

Great Britain will erect a monument to the late Field Marshal Haig and coming generations will wonder why it was erected.

They will wonder also why the greatest war in history did not develop one great general, one man with enough genius to carry a conquering force across a line of ditches and barbed wire. Flying machines will do the job in the next war—carrying explosives and poison gas 1,000 miles beyond any trench.

No trenches in the air.

Standard Oil bought Russian oil, selling it in India and elsewhere. Britain's Shell Company roared and protested, then threatened cut-throat competition.

Now Standard Oil plans business on a big scale in the British island. If that happens the British company will probably learn new things about competition. The fight will help all that use gasoline in Great Britain and stimulate shipment of American cars to British buyers.

Providence works mysteriously and well.

Dog Team Races Will Feature Alaska Winter Sports

It has been definitely decided that the Winter Sports Carnival at Fairbanks, Alaska, to be featured by the dog team races between Fairbanks and Circle, and other shorter races, will be held March 6 to 10. In addition to the dog team races an attractive program of other Winter sports, in which visitors are invited to participate, will be in effect.

By sailing from Seattle Feb. 25 visitors from the States will reach Seward, Alaska, March 3, and Fairbanks early in the evening of March 5—to be present at the opening of the carnival, March 6. Returning, they may leave Fairbanks March 9 for Seward, sailing southward from the latter point March 10, or, if time at their disposal will allow them to do so, they may spend an additional week in Alaska, sailing southward from Seward March 17.

TRAIN SERVICE IS SPEEDIER

Announcement is made by E. S. Leavitt, general agent, Southern Pacific Lines, that effective March 4th, the eastbound schedule to Chicago of the Overland Limited and Golden State Limited will be shortend one hour and forty-five minutes between San Francisco and Los Angeles, respectively.

The Overland Limited, under this arrangement, will depart from San Francisco at 6:00 p. m., arriving Chicago, 9:15 a. m.

Actual schedule of the Golden State Limited not yet determined but its running time will also be one hour and forty-five minutes less than its present schedule.

This change will result in both trains arriving in Chicago sufficiently early to permit passengers for the East to connect with morning trains from that city.

No change is contemplated in Westbound schedules of these trains at present.

WINTER SPORTS AT GREENFIELD

The United States Eastern ski championships, feature of Greenfield's 1928 annual Winter carnival, open tomorrow and continue to Sunday night.

The opening number of the carnival will be the United States Eastern championship cross-country ski run. This will be made over a course ten miles in length and practically all the leading ski runners of the East will participate. A similar race, when carried out in connection with the inter-State ski meet here last year proved of great interest to the spectators and it is anticipated that this year's contest will be even more thrilling since a much larger field of picked runners will be entered.

The general participation of the public in the carnival will take place tomorrow night, when a Winter sports parade will be staged. The parade will proceed to the toboggan chute and junior ski jump. The festivities will center in this vicinity and the main attraction will be a fine display of fireworks.

In addition a huge bonfire will be lighted and the activities will be transferred to the toboggan chute and junior ski jump, where races and ski stunts will be presented. Special lighting and decorative effects will be installed to give the entertainment a colorful setting.

VISAS WILL BE FREE ON ITALIAN SHIPS

The Italian government will hereafter grant free visa to all foreign travellers embarking on Italian steamships whether in transit or for a prolonged stay in Italy.

Passports must bear, however, and in any case, the Italian consular visa, which will be affixed upon presentation of the passage ticket by the passenger personally.

NEW PROGRAM RECORD

New York, Feb. 9.—With a radio program that set a new record in "inter-city switching" the Hotel Statler chain formally celebrated the realization of its new service slogan of a "radio for every room."

The hook-up included seventeen stations. In the one hour which the program lasted, radio fans heard music from six cities in five states. The music was broadcast from the ballrooms of hotels in New York, Cleveland, Detroit, Boston, St. Louis and Buffalo. Station WEAF of the National Broadcasting Company, was the local station included in the hook-up.

At the conclusion of the hour program, it was announced at the Hotel Pennsylvania that a new record of 3½ seconds had been established in switching from one city to another in broadcasting the programs from the various hotels.

Building Still Active

The radio fan who builds his own continues to make his presence known. While the size of his family probably has decreased considerably, the wide interest still shown in home building testifies to his activity.

200 SCHOOLS TO LISTEN IN

More than 200 schools in various parts of the country have informed Walter Damrosch or the stations through which his broadcast experimental programs in musical education will be heard that they will be prepared to listen to the programs on the mornings of February 10 and 17.

Station WTAG, in Worcester, Mass., has been informed that schools in the following cities and towns will install receivers: Worcester, Fitchburg, Gardner, Southbridge, Webster, Clinton, Whitinsville, Marlboro, Spencer, Leicester, North Brookfield, Athol, Milford, North Grafton, Grafton, Westboro, Barre, Shrewsbury, Brookfield and East Brookfield.

RADIO DIALOG

by C. WILLIAM RADOS

A NIGHTLY audience that runs into millions is able to listen to the same program in many cities. Regular weekly chain programs now go out over as many as 33 stations reaching most of the population in the states east of the Mississippi. On the WEAF "Red" network there is a total of eighteen stations on the basic network. Seventeen more come in on special occasions or certain broadcasts.

The "Blue" WJZ network has eleven stations as the basic nightly group. Twenty more are available for programs of interest to their localities.

The "Columbia" chain broadcasts over a nightly network of seventeen stations. This completes the arithmetic of the three big networks.

Besides these are the American organization on the Pacific coast with five stations, and the N. B. C. Pacific coast group with seven broadcasting stations.

And last night we heard WGY in Schenectady broadcasting on a small chain with units in Buffalo and Syracuse.

New York WMCA and WPCH and WABC are further examples of the small chain stations.

WHN-WPAP, New York, is rumored to be starting a totally independent chain of two score stations.

And the Catholic Paulist Fathers, operating WLWL in New York, have long been ambitious to operate a chain of their own or affiliated monastic order.

A special program to celebrate the centuries-old rite of the sun dance of the Eskimos, observed each year in the far north when the sun first appears, has been arranged by KDKA, Pittsburgh, for 10 p. m., Eastern time, February 18.

"The Curb Is the Limit Club," organized by "Uncle Bob" Wilson, in charge of the children's hour over KYW, Chicago, now has a membership of 300,000. Each member signs a pledge to stop, look and listen when crossing streets.

Two stations have been added to the Columbia chain, whose key is WOR, Newark. KOIL, Council Bluffs, Ia., which was on the chain on Sundays, only, becomes a daily participant, while KMBC, Kansas City is a new member.

The President's Appeal for an Unfettered, Patriotic American Press Upholds Position of Hearst Papers

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE issued a clarion call to patriotic journalism in his address dedicating the magnificent new $10,000,000 building of the National Press Club in Washington on Saturday night.

The President, like every other intelligent reader of American newspapers, is daily impressed with the fact that the foreign correspondents of certain American newspapers are more interested in furthering the interests of foreign governments than in furthering the interests of the United States.

Correspondents — Americans living abroad—ACT like the paid propagandists of foreign governments. Newspaper men can be paid and influenced more subtly than by the use of money. The number of Legion of Honor ribbons in the possession of American reporters in Paris is notorious.

The anti-American attitude of these correspondents is too often supported by the editorial policies of their papers at home. When our representatives at Geneva were negotiating with England regarding restriction of cruiser tonnage, there were American newspapers that supported the British claim to mastery of the seas. No British newspaper has ever been found advocating American maritime supremacy. Why cannot American papers be as loyal to the interests of their country?

The President was referring to such conditions when he told the National Press Club on Saturday:

"Whenever any of the press of our country undertake to exert their influence in behalf of foreign interests, the candor of the situation would be greatly increased if their foreign connections were publicly disclosed. All public business ought to be publicly conducted.

"Foreign interests have the privilege of being represented here. The right to fair treatment is as wide as humanity. But when foreign governments are represented here, their agents are required to become publicly accredited and be publicly received."

In other words, the President wants to stop this business of foreign governments influencing American governmental policies by subtle control of the American press.

The dangers are real dangers, against which all patriotic newspapers must be on their guard. On January 30, a week before the President made his address, William Randolph Hearst sent to the executives of his publications a letter reproduced on this page. It suggests the resignation of any Hearst employe who accepts any favor or decoration from any foreign government.

The very first requirement of a free American press is that the press shall be free of domination or influence by any of the foreign governments seeking their own interest at the expense of our own country.

MR. HEARST'S INSTRUCTIONS TO HIS ORGANIZATION, ISSUED ON JAN. 30

Jan. 30, 1928.

To all publishers and editors and to managers of news services.

Gentlemen:

In view of certain matters which have arisen, I would like to repeat the advice I have previously given to all representatives of the Hearst newspapers and news services to be exceedingly careful not to accept favors from any individual or agency that may desire to put our representatives or our institution under obligations.

Absolute independence of all political, financial or other influences which might use any news service or newspaper for their own advantage has been one of the greatest assets of the Hearst papers and news services.

The object of our institution is to serve the public only and to present the news without bias or prejudice of any kind.

It is impossible for our representatives to accept favors from powerful influences and agencies without being under obligations to those influences and agencies and subject to demand for favors in return.

It is a fundamental rule of our institution not to be under obligations to any politicians or political parties, or governmental departments in our own country.

It is our policy to ask no favors from the Government in our own country, but to be entirely free to take any attitude or pursue any course that we believe to be in the public interest.

IT IS STILL MORE IMPORTANT FOR OUR INSTITUTION AND ITS REPRESENTATIVES TO BE FREE FROM ANY OBLIGATION TO FOREIGN POLITICIANS AND GOVERNMENTS, ESPECIALLY WHEN THERE ARE CONTROVERSIES BETWEEN THOSE FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS AND THE GOVERNMENT OF OUR OWN COUNTRY, AND WHEN WE MUST IN COMMON LOYALTY TO OUR OWN PEOPLE TAKE THE PART OF OUR OWN GOVERNMENT AND COME INTO CONFLICT WHEREVER NECESSARY WITH THE ATTITUDES AND DESIRES OF FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS WHICH MAY BE IN OPPOSITION TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF OUR OWN PEOPLE AND OUR OWN NATION.

I AM DISTINCTLY AND DEFINITELY OPPOSED TO ANY REPRESENTATIVE OF OUR NEWSPAPERS OR NEWS SERVICES RECEIVING ANY DECORATIONS OR HONORARIUM FROM ANY FOREIGN GOVERNMENT, EXCEPT FOR PATRIOTIC SERVICE RENDERED AMERICA'S ALLIES IN TIME OF WAR.

IF, HOWEVER, ANY REPRESENTATIVE OF OUR INSTITUTION DOES DESIRE TO EXERCISE HIS PERSONAL PRIVILEGE TO ACCEPT A PEACE TIME DECORATION FROM ANY FOREIGN GOVERNMENT AND INCUR THE CONSEQUENT OBLIGATION, I WOULD LIKE HIM TO DO IT ENTIRELY FROM A PERSONAL STANDPOINT, AND I WOULD LIKE HIM TO REMOVE THE POSSIBILITY OF PLACING HIS NEWSPAPER OR HIS NEWS SERVICE UNDER SUCH OBLIGATION, OR HIMSELF AS THE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE NEWSPAPER OR NEWS SERVICE, BY RETIRING FROM THE EMPLOYMENT OF THE NEWSPAPER OR THE NEWS SERVICE, SO THAT THERE WILL BE NO DOUBT IN HIS MIND OR ANYONE'S ELSE THAT THE FAVOR CONFERRED UPON HIM IS PURELY A PERSONAL ONE, AND THAT THE NEWSPAPER OR THE NEWS SERVICE IS UNDER NO OBLIGATION WHATSOEVER.

I hope and believe that our representatives will all take pride in this independence of our institution from extraneous influence; and I hope that this independence will become so thoroughly recognized that foreign governments and all other selfish agencies and influences will realize that they cannot affect the attitude or actions of our newspapers and news services by any kind of bribery or cajolery or by any force or any favoritism.

I believe that we will then all rejoice in the respect which governments and other powerful agencies will have for us and which we will have for ourselves.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

LEARN FROM DOING IS THE BEST WAY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A SCHOOL-TEACHER in one of Dickens' stories has a pupil study the spelling of botany and then go out and work in the garden.

Thus the spelling is impressed upon his mind.

He wasn't much of a school-teacher, but his idea was sound.

The best way to learn is to learn from doing.

All knowledge is connected with life. The way to learn a language is to connect every word with something you actually do or see. In other words, language is to be connected with life and not with literature.

There was a meeting the other day held in one of our cities to discuss the enabling of students to earn while learning. Representatives of forty-two States of the Union and one from Canada were present. Nicholas Ricciardi, President of the National Association of Vocational Education, said:

"Under the present system, students are taught various vocations, from watchmaking to hair dressing, during their high school terms. When they graduate from high school they are ready to hold a position. In junior college they are permitted to work at remunerative employment during the mornings and attend classes during the afternoon. They can continue their education on through college, and then their earning power will be sufficient to pay their expenses and enable them actually to save money."

This plan is already actually carried out at Antioch, a small college town in Ohio, where the business men co-operate with the college and the student works part of the time and studies part of the time. Thus while at Princeton the average yearly outlay for a son is estimated at $1,500, while at Antioch the average freshman needs only $400 besides his earnings.

The vocational aims of students include agriculture architecture, art, business, engineering, medicine, economics, law, etc.

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—No club in New York has such regular attendance as the Dutch Treat. It is an organization composed of the leading newspapermen, columnists, authors, painters, cartoonists, and illustrators, and holds a luncheon every Tuesday in the Hotel Martinique.

There is no clubhouse, and as the name implies it is a "Dutch treat," even for the favored guests. The Dutch Treat luncheon represents the skimmed cream of the literary and art world. A member missing two luncheons in a row is supposed to furnish a good excuse, but that is seldom necessary.

At each luncheon there are one or more guests of honor and in this is displayed a catholicity of taste. Among those honored this season, for instance, were Signor Marconi, Paul Whiteman, Jackie Coogan, Sinclair Lewis, Fanny Ward and Strongheart, the movie dog star.

Once a year the Dutch Treat gives a show, which is written, staged, directed and acted by its membership. Marc Connelly blossomed into a playwright after producing several Dutch Treat shows. Robert Benchley's Dutch Treat skit landed him in the Music Box revue.

Deems Taylor displayed the ability that won him operatic recognition at these annual affairs. Tony Sarg and his marionettes were, I believe, first shown there. Reinald Werrenrath sang at Dutch Treat shows before he became so famous as a concert artist.

Several acts were lengthened into Broadway plays and amusing skits transferred to musical revues. Few visiting celebrities escape the Dutch Treaters. A secretary is employed as a scout to run them down and bring them to the weekly luncheon.

There are no formalities. Every member forgets for the luncheon hour his achievements or love flies out the window and he is the target for gosh-awful kidding. Guests of honor are given respectful hearing, but must not get arty for the strength of the organization is in its simple democracy.

THE demolition of the old Hotel Normandie removes another Broadway landmark. It was built by Ferdinand P. Earle, fifty years ago. It was for many years a haven for theatrical people during the Weberfieldian era. The hotel was purchased by A. F. Lefcourt, who used to sell papers at its entrance, and he will erect a loft building on the site.

ONE of those fellows whose devotion to his art has produced an upper lip like a South American tapir was pouring his soul into a clarinet in a Broadway orchestra pit the other night. Two gentlemen in the first row were discussing six chorus men who were smirking and dancing with hands on their hips.

"Four of them look like sissies to me," observed one.

"Five are," said the clarinet player, without turning his head or losing a note.

A WELL-KNOWN German dialect comedian was six years ago offered a leading role and a generous percentage arrangement in a forthcoming production. He read the script and refused the offer. Just to mention it to him today brings a couple of big fat tears. The play was "Abie's Irish Rose." And he hasn't worked since it opened.

THIS river show boat or eloquently known as "the floating opera" was going the way of the blackface minstrel troupe two years ago, but this year so great is the interest that many artists are being engaged by the New York agencies for river work. The revival of interest is attributed solely to the novel, "Show Boat," by Edna Ferber and the play by the same name appearing on Broadway.

IN our metropolis, the cry of "Show Boat!" left the town deserted in five minutes. The entire population moved to the levee. And it surely was a grand sight to see French's Floating Opera round the bend and come head-on upstream with its calliope shrieking, "In the Good Old Summer Time." Two men in our town—Chee-y Funk and Fred Prisel—were show boat bandsmen, marching a little self-conscious in the parade. To my mind there are commonplaces in the glamour of the world. Here this week—three weeks later in Cairo (Ill.)!
